Introduction

Italians, as well as immigrants from all over Europe, came to Houghton County to work in the expanding mining industry. Michigan's copper mining district, opened in the 1840s, was the first metal mining rush in United States history. During the 1840s and early 1850s the Copper Country was still a frontier mining community. The demand for labor was seasonal, in fact it was high during the spring when shipping was possible and the harsh weather did not impede exploration of the territory. During the winter the demand was considerably lower.¹ The census of 1850 indicates that there were 708 people living in Houghton County. By the 1860s seasonal fluctuations became less significant because mining companies started to focus on underground progress during the winter and they were also able to have supply of labor at rates not much higher than those for mining in the East. The census of 1860 indicates that the population of Houghton County had reached 9,253. Serious shortages in the supply of labor appeared during the Civil War and when many mines opened at the same time during the 1860s. At this point some mining companies working through foreign agents and the Mine Emigrant Society started to import workers from abroad. The Copper Country entered its great period of growth during the 1870s. The population of the area grew accordingly. The censuses indicate that the population of Houghton County reached 13,882 in 1870, 22,473 in 1880, and 35,389 in 1890. Irishmen, Englishmen, Canadians, Germans, and Scandinavians were the more numerous immigrants during the 1870s and 1880s. Starting from the 1890s the great bulk of immigrants came from Finland, Austria, and Italy. From 1890 until 1910 the population of Houghton County more than doubled. It reached 66,063 in 1900 and 88,098 in 1910. During the 1910s the mining industry started a steady decline and the population declined as a consequence. In fact it decreased to 71,930 in 1920 and dropped to 52,851 in 1930.² The first Italians arrived in Houghton County around 1860 and were very important in the early history of the region. Even before the mass migration of Italians to America in the 1890s, Michigan had 3,000 Italian immigrants, 75% of whom lived in the remote Upper Peninsula. By 1910 over 7,000 Italians lived in the Upper Peninsula.

Italians concentrated in the Houghton County communities of Laurium, Calumet, South Range, and Hancock. Their community was of national significance as shown by their symbolic involvement in the famous Italian Hall disaster of 1913 that linked this region to the larger issue of American labor strife.

They left a rich documentary record in the form of newspapers, diaries, benevolent society papers and other materials. The purpose of this work is to identify and characterize the Italians that came to Michigan's Houghton County during the years between 1870 and 1930. The following chapters explain the regions of origin of these Italians, their jobs in Houghton County, the areas where they preferred to settle and the relations, if any, among origins, jobs, and patterns of settlement.

The starting point for this thesis is the work of Professor Rudolph J. Vecoli - who wrote extensively on the topic of Italian immigration and is also one of the first to have written specifically about Italian immigrants to the mines of Lake Superior - and Professor Russell M. Magnaghi - who wrote particularly on the Italians of Upper Michigan and interviewed some of them in the 1980s.

Historic documents concerning Italian immigrants to the Upper Peninsula of Michigan may be found at three main repositories. The Michigan Technological University and Copper Country Archives in Houghton maintains collections of primary sources on the Italian immigrants of the region, including census records, mining company records, newspapers, diaries, and benevolent society papers. Databases of the Italians living in Houghton County in the years 1870, 1880, 1900, 1910, 1920, and 1930 have been extracted from the censuses of the same years. Mining company records such as employees' cards and job applications have been useful in tracking provenience and places of residence of the Italian workers. Newspapers such as Il Minatore Italiano and Miners' Bulletin have been helpful to know more about everyday life of the Italians in Houghton County.

The Northern Michigan University Archives in Marquette maintains a collection of oral interviews of Italians living in the Upper Peninsula that Professor Russell Magnaghi of Northern Michigan University made during the 1980s. The tapes of the interviews helped to make more sense out of the data previously collected, and to form an idea of how Italians perceived themselves within their new environment. Besides the tapes, Professor Magnaghi's papers represented a rich source for each part of this work.

The Immigration History Research Center at University of Minnesota in Minneapolis keeps the country's largest collection about Italian immigrants in general and also of Italians in Upper Michigan. Most important, the only available issues of newspapers and other publications such as L'Indipendente and Pro Nobis are preserved there.

Chapter I, Italian Emigration, is a general introduction to the history of Italian emigration, with a particular focus on Italian emigration to the United States. It also includes an overview of the different stages that emigrants had to go through to reach their destinations: recruitment, travel, laws of emigration in Italy and laws of immigration in the United States.

Chapter II, Provenience, examines the number and the provenience of the Italians who settled in Houghton County from 1870 until 1930. It also gives a general description of the Italian provinces from which most of them came: Torino and Lucca.

Chapter III, Occupations, considers the occupations that Italians had when they first arrived in Houghton County and examines how these changed through the years. It tries to verify previously assumed ideas about the occupations in which most of the Italians were involved. It compares the occupations of the two main groups of Italians - Torinesi and Lucchesi - to find out if there is a relation between provenience and occupation.

Chapter IV, Settlements, analyzes the patterns of settlement of Italians in the townships and villages of Houghton County through the years. It also shows a comparison in the pattern of settlements of the Torinesi and Lucchesi.

Chapter V, Organizations, discusses Italian organizations of different kind - cultural, business, religious, and social - established in Houghton County and in the Upper Peninsula of Michigan.

Chapter VI, Conclusion, sums up what it has been possible to discover about Italian immigrants to Houghton County and suggests further research.

Chapter I - Italian Emigration

1.0 Italian emigration: an introduction.

Italians have been the protagonists of the biggest migratory exodus in modern history.³ From 1861 - year of the birth of the Italian nation - until 1988, the year of almost complete exhaustion of the flows, about twenty-six million Italians left their country.⁴ This emigration evolved in four phases.

The first phase extended from 1876 until 1900 and saw a steady increase in the number of emigrants. During the second phase, 1900-1914, the so-called years of the “great emigration”, Italian emigration reached its peak. It ceased during World War I. The third phase, between the two world wars, was characterized by a decrease in the number of emigrants because of the global economic crisis and because of the restrictions imposed by several foreign countries (an example is the earlier 1921 Immigration Act in the U.S.). Fascism, which was hostile to emigration, and World War II almost eliminated emigration. The fourth phase extended from the end of World War II until the 1960s. Immediately after the end of the war there was an increase, but the pattern of emigration changed after Italy’s entrance into the European Economic Community in 1957; the average of people going abroad dropped severely.⁵

Figures I, II, and III show the number of emigrants from each Italian region during the first three phases of emigration. Although there are significant differences in time of departure and in final destinations, people from every Italian region contributed to this emigration. Between 1876 and 1900 there was a prevalence of emigrants from the northern regions: Veneto, Piemonte, Friuli Venezia Giulia. During the following decades the trend was inverted with the biggest number of departures from Sicilia, Campania, and Calabria. As for the countries of destination, Italians almost equally divided between European countries and American ones, with France and United States as the principal recipients (see Table I). Italians emigrating towards America also showed particular patterns. Most Southern Italians immigrated to North America. Northern Italians preferred Latin America. Central Italians equally divided between North and South America.

1.1 Characteristics of Italian emigration

The characteristics of Italian emigration included a prevalence of men - about 80% during the first period. The percentage of women was very low during the first years; it almost equaled that of men during the 1930s. The emigrants were very young; most of them were between 15 and 40 years old. It was a temporary emigration, at least at the beginning. It began as a seasonal migration of Northern Italians to Europe and Northern Africa, but soon developed into a permanent immigration overseas. Only 1/3 of the Italians who left between 1861 and 1940 decided to stay abroad. It was a proletarian emigration. Most of the emigrants were landless countrymen, craftsmen, and building workers. They were mostly illiterate; in 1871 the percentage of illiteracy in Italy was 67.5%. In Southern Italy it was around 90%. The number of professional people was extremely small.

1.2 The reasons: factors of expulsion and factors of attraction

The reasons for the mass emigration of the Italians were many, and there were also differences in the reasons that made people emigrate from the south and north of Italy. There were both factors of expulsion (push factors) and factors of attraction (pull factors).

The factors of expulsion were the crisis in agriculture of the 1880s, the increase in taxes in the country after the Italian unification of 1861, and the decline of the traditional trades and in the domestic industries. To make things worse for the countrymen of Southern Italy, because of the *latifondo system*⁶, they could count only on small lands that could not provide enough to survive. Between 1870 and 1900 the standard of living became worse in the whole of Italy, especially in the countryside. This led to the spreading of diseases and starvation. Food had become the biggest cost for an Italian family. Many peasant families spent about 75% of their money on food. Despite the high cost, this food often did not contain enough nutrition to sustain a person.⁷

In the North, the population suffered from pellagra. In the South malaria was the main plague. At first, malaria only struck in the coastal areas, but with deforestation, erosion and flooding it spread all over. The conditions which people endured in these areas were exceedingly harsh as 2 million Italians died each year.⁸

The agricultural system of Italy was not modernized, and there was little hope of improving the situation. Moreover, increasing numbers of products from America invaded Italian markets and made prices fall. There was no alternative other than to emigrate, and several factors of attraction - pull factors - opened the way to it: the request for labor and the decrease in the cost of travel.

1.3 The ways of emigration

The first to leave were the so-called pioneers that left Italy looking for opportunities. Then emigration developed following the pattern of chain migration. These chains followed familial, regional, and professional connections. In the case of regional connections, people decided to emigrate to places where people from the same region were already living. Professional connections led people with specific labor skills to reach places where suitable jobs were available. In the case of family connections, relatives, friends or people from the same village joined the first emigrants because of the news received by letters. These letters often included prepaid tickets, the main form of emigration support during the 1890s.

Another way of financing the travel overseas was credit, and the agents of emigration played a fundamental role. Before the Italian law of 1901 that established that the intermediaries of emigration had to be employees of the navigation companies, the agents of emigration were private citizens embarking in this activity to increase their incomes. They were usually usurers, people in prominent positions such as mayors, priests, notaries, and town council employees (or people in close contact with them) aiming at exploiting their connections. Emigrants applying at the town council to obtain documents to expatriate and/or to ask for advice from other important persons in their village sooner or later got in touch with these agents. The agents did not always have the best intentions and numerous emigrants were cheated in many ways: higher priced tickets, steamships that reached places they did not want to go, false promises of fantastic places and jobs. With the law of 1901 on emigration, the Italian state tried to solve this problem. Starting from that date, in fact, navigation companies directly appointed their intermediaries to sell tickets. In most cases the navigation companies chose the same agents, but instructed them on their new positions and professional duties. Still, these representatives of navigation companies were able to take advantage of the emigrants in many ways. In fact, it took a while before the new laws started to work properly and the agents remained the main referees for people to get information and to speed up the process of getting passports.

The navigation companies both favored and took advantage of the big boom in emigration. The shift from sail to steam navigation considerably shortened the duration of travels and allowed a considerable decrease in the price of tickets. For example, in 1902 the Societa' di Navigazione Generale Italiana Florio and Rubattino had nine steamships that were able to reach New York from Genoa in 16 days, and 110 vessels which made the same trip in one month. A new market was ready to pay for these services. European companies with headquarters in sea cities like Palermo, Naples, Genoa, and Marseilles flourished. In 1905 there were six navigation companies - Navigazione Generale Italiana with fourteen ships, La Veloce with thirteen ships, La Patria with six ships, Anglo-Italiana with four ships, Hamburg-Amerika Linie with four ships, Giuseppe Fornari with five ships- travelling from the Italian ports of Genoa, Naples, and Palermo to New York. The Compagnie Générale Transatlantique, a French company with ships travelling from Havre to New York, was the only foreign one authorized to sell tickets in Northern Italy through its representatives residing in Italy. The prices of the tickets sold by these companies ranged from a minimum of 143 to a maximum of 190 liras. People leaving from Havre had to add the cost of the train ticket from Italy, 40-60 liras according to the city of departure.⁹

1.4 Italian emigration to the United States

From 1857 to 1869 the total Italian emigration to the U.S. never exceeded one thousand per year. Starting in 1870 it steadily increased, but it stayed within five thousand per year until 1879. In 1880 the number jumped to reach about 12,000 Italian emigrants.¹⁰ According to the 1880 census there were 44,000 Italians in the U.S.

Beccherini was a priest at the church of Saint Francis in Detroit and was asked by Monsignor Scalabrini, Vescovo of Piacenza and founder of the Congregation of the Missioners of San Carlo for the Italian Emigrants to write a report.

Between 1880 and 1890 about 268,000 Italians came to the U.S., but many of them returned and only 183,000 were enumerated in the 1890 census.

During the nineties, 604,000 entered the U.S.; only 484,000 appear in the census of 1900. In the first decade of the nineteenth century, 2,104,000 arrived, but only 1,343,000 were enumerated in 1910. The pattern changed during the following years. Between 1910 and 1920 1,110,000 arrived and there were 1,610,000 persons of Italian birth in the 1920 census. By the 1920s the Italian immigration to the U.S. was a permanent one. It continued in big numbers until the cut off imposed by the Immigration Quota Act in 1921. In fact, only 455,000 Italians entered the U.S. during the twenties following the Immigration Quota Act. In 1930 the census enumerated 1,790,000 Italians.¹¹

1.5 Reasons for Italian immigration into the U.S.

Several factors caused the boom in the Italian emigration to the United States. First of all the improvement of national and transatlantic transport facilities made the trip affordable: at one point it was cheaper to leave for America than to reach Northern Europe. Secondly, the economic crisis both in Southern and Northern Italy offered a push to emigrate. Thirdly, there was a growing demand for labor in North America. Last but not least was the fact that in the late nineteenth century Argentina, Brazil, and Uruguay (three nations that attracted millions of Italians before) underwent serious crises connected to rapid economic change and development, and the flow of Italians was deflected to the United States.

As in many other places in the world, Italians in America clustered into groups related to their place of origin. For example, the Sicilian resided in New Orleans, the Neapolitans and Calabrians in Minnesota, and many Northern Italians in California. However, most of the Italians were concentrated on the East Coast, in New York, Boston, Philadelphia, and Baltimore, just where they disembarked. Other groups decided to move away from the towns of arrival and look for new economic opportunities elsewhere. To understand why Italians were so clearly divided in different regional groups, one needs remember that until 1861, Italy was not a united state. Only when Italians arrived in America they did realize what the concept of nation meant. Italians came from a nation that struggled to become a state and at the time of their departure they were still lacking a national consciousness. They most likely identified with their village rather than with Italy. The center of the migrant's concern remained his hometown.

1.6 Italian and American laws

The Italian state did little to protect the emigrants during its first years.¹² The initial negative judgments of the political elite on emigration led to administrative actions aimed at preventing the departure of those lacking adequate financial means and/or a job at their destination. The circolare Menabrea and the circolare Lanza¹³ were promulgated in 1868 and in 1873 respectively. In 1878 the circolare Nicotera mitigated these dispositions. The next law, named after Crispi, was passed in 1888. This law recognized for the first time the freedom to emigrate and paid some attention to the illicit acts of the agents of emigration and the contracts of transportation. This law did not include any direct intervention of the state in the matter of assistance to the emigrants. In 1901 a new law did so. First of all it introduced the vettore as a person legally appointed by a navigation company to recruit emigrants. The vettore substituted for the agente dell'emigrazione, persons that acted by themselves during the first years of the Italian emigration to speculate more or less legally on the need for information and assistance to emigrate. The law also instituted the Commissariato per l'Emigrazione, an organization dependent on the Department of Foreign Affairs. Consuls working for the Commissariato produced inquiries and studies on Italian communities all over the world that were then published in the Bollettino dell'Emigrazione. The aristocratic class extraction of most of the consuls, though, prevented them from having a clear understanding of the problems and conditions of the emigrants. Moreover, the law did not introduce any kind of help for emigrants in the countries of destination, leaving Italy without any sort of international agreement to facilitate the entering of emigrants into foreign labor markets. It left ample ways of action to private associations, though.

¹² Brunialti, Attilio. "L'esodo degli italiani e la legge sull'emigrazione". In Nuova Antologia di Scienze, Lettere ed Arti, Vol. XVI, C, Terza Serie, pp. 96-114.

¹³ Circolare is an official document issued by the government. These two circolari ordered the major offices of the provinces to do as much as possible to prevent illegal emigration and to slow legal ones. In particular the circolare Lanza gave instructions to the mayors to refuse the nulla osta (permit) to emigrate to young males of the age to enter the army, to soldiers not through with army service, to disabled persons, and to anybody with scarce financial means.

The Catholic Church was one of the first to act and help immigrants, both in the United States and in other countries of Italian emigration. The San Raffaele Society, founded by Monsignor Giovanni Battista Scalabrini, opened missions all over the Americas. The “scalabriniani” assisted immigrants both before their departure, helping them in dealing with agents and navigation companies, and at their arrival helping them to find a job and to integrate.¹⁴

In the United States the situation for the immigrants wasn't that different. Up until the 1930s the state did little to help immigrants to face the many challenges they had in the new country. Once in the United States assistance to the immigrants came mainly from the private sector: religious people connected to the Protestant churches, and laymen belonging to the progressive movement. They assisted immigrants in the search for a job, a house - subtracting them from the hands of the padroni - and to better understand the complicated American laws concerning immigration.

Since the beginning of the great immigration, only the entrepreneurs were favorable to an unlimited arrival of people from Southeast Europe. Others had fears of a different nature: political, because of assumed subversive elements; social, because of assumed criminality; cultural, because of fear of the loss of Anglo-Saxon supremacy; and religious, because the new immigrants were mostly Catholics. Once the need for cheap labor ceased, they had their victory.

To curb the rapid movement of immigrants into the United States the government passed a series of laws. In 1921 the government passed the Immigration Quota Act. It restricted immigration to 3% of the population of each specific country according to the census of 1910. In 1924 the act was revised to restrict further the percentage to 2% using the census of 1890. These acts heavily affected Italian immigration. Before the enactment of the first restriction, Italian immigration into the United States in 1921 was 222,260. In 1925 it dropped to 6,203.

Chapter II - Provenience

2.0 Italians and the mines of Lake Superior

During the 1880s numerous mines opened on the copper and iron ranges of Lake Superior. The first mines opened in the mid-1840s on the Marquette Iron Range and on the Copper Range of Michigan. Michigan's Menominee Iron Range opened in the 1870s. In 1884 mines were opened on the Vermillion Iron Range in Minnesota and on the Gogebic Iron Range on the border between Michigan and Wisconsin. The Mesabi Iron Range and the Cuyuna Iron Range in Minnesota opened in 1892 and in 1912 respectively.¹⁵ During the first stage of mining a small work force was employed. In the second stage, an enlarged force labored to open up and test the most promising finds. Most of the workers in the mines were European immigrants. At the beginning British, Scandinavian, Irish and Germans were the most numerous nationalities. Around 1900 the number of Finnish, Croatian, Polish, Slovenian and Italian immigrants grew larger.

The Italian colony of the Upper Peninsula of Michigan is one of the oldest Italian colonies of the central states of the US.¹⁶ The very first Italians reached the Upper Peninsula of Michigan during the 1860s. They came to work in the copper and iron mines of Houghton, Marquette, Gogebic, and Menominee Counties. After 1880 they started to form significant communities in the region of Lake Superior. Because the earliest Italians were temporary residents¹⁷, many more Italians reached the area and worked in the mines than are reflected in census reports.

2.1 Definition of Italian Community

The goal of this study was to gather data about the number of the Italian immigrants that settled in Houghton County from the Michigan state censuses of 1870, 1880, 1900, 1910, 1920, and 1930 (see Appendix VI-XI). The census of 1890 is not available because it was lost in a fire. The census of 1870 is the first year examined because before that time the presence of Italians in the county is almost irrelevant.¹⁸ The last year is 1930 because it is the last census available to the public, and it is evident that global recession and Depression slowed emigration from Europe.

Individuals who were born in Italy, individuals who were not born in Italy but with at least one Italian parent or grandparent, individuals with Italian surnames, or individuals with varying nationalities, married to one of the previous, are included in the Italian community.

Previous studies about Italian immigrants to the Upper Peninsula of Michigan stated general patterns about their regions of provenience. According to the works of Professor Rudolph Vecoli and Professor Russell Magnaghi, Italians coming from different regions of Italy settled in different counties of the Upper Peninsula. Gogebic County Italians were mainly from Piedmont, Abruzzo, Sicily and Tyrol¹⁹. Menominee County Italians mostly came from the province of Venice. In Dickinson County there were people from Tyrol, Abruzzo, and Lombardy. Iron County Italians mostly came from Umbria, Marches, Abruzzo, and Tyrol. Houghton County Italians mostly came from the regions of Piedmont, Tuscany, and Lombardy (see Figure III, p. 26).²⁰

In 1912 Attilio Castigliano, Italian consul in Duluth²¹, Minnesota, wrote in a report published in the Bollettino dell'Emigrazione, the official publication of the Commissariato per l'Emigrazione²², that

“The Italian colony of the Upper Peninsula of Michigan is one of the oldest Italian colonies of the central states of the North American Federation. In fact our workers, mainly piemontesi and toscani, started to work, in big numbers, in the copper mines of Calumet, Michigan, since the beginning of the mines themselves, that is about fifty years ago [...] Most of the Italians in the Copper Country came from Piemonte and more specifically from Canavese; numerous are the Toscani (Lucchesi), little the Veneti and very little the Lombardi; Southern Italians are absent ”.²³

The sources used to verify these data and to track down the provenience of Italian immigrants to Houghton County have been essentially four: the Ellis Island database that includes ships' manifests indicating the last place of residence of the immigrants, the employment cards of Calumet and Hecla Mining Company kept at Michigan Technological University and Copper Country Archives that indicate the place of birth of the workers, the available issues of the Italian newspaper Il Minatore Italiano (The Italian Miner) edited by Italian immigrants in Calumet starting from 1896 that sometimes included data about local Italians, and the oral interviews taken by Professor Russell Magnaghi during the 1980s with Italian immigrants and descendants of the Upper Peninsula in which people talk about their villages of origin.

It has been possible to establish a region and province of origin for most of the immigrants sometimes even their city and/or their village. Other individuals cannot be identified to this level; because the name of the immigrant on the census is not clearly readable; because the immigrant arrived before 1897 and on the ships' manifests of the Ellis Island database only the country of origin is indicated; or because the immigrant arrived in the US through a port that is not New York and manifests were not accessible. In the case of married women there is a different problem. If they arrived in the United States with their husbands or some years later but already married, their name is on the ships' manifests. If they married after their arrival, because they changed their surname, their name on the censuses does not match that on the ships' manifests. In some cases however, the employment cards indicate the maiden names of the wives of the workers, so it's been possible to track down their provenience.

Children born in the United States from Italian parents were assigned the provenience of the father if both the parents were Italians and the provenience of the Italian parent if one of them was not Italian.

2.2 Italians in Houghton County in 1870: numbers and provenience

In 1870 the Italian community in Houghton County included just twenty-one individuals. Six of them were actually born in Italy, eleven were born in another country but from at least one Italian parent, four were from other nations and married an Italian (one Irish, one Canadian, one American, and one French).

As far as provenience of those born in Italy and their sons, two provinces and two regions are represented: Piemonte and its province Torino, and Toscana and its province Lucca. Nine immigrants were from the province of Torino, five from the province of Lucca, and three of them unknown (the problem with them is the surname and the fact that they came before 1897).

2.3 Italians in Houghton County in 1880: numbers and provenience

In 1880 the community numbered 220 individuals. Of these 177 (81%) were actually born in Italy; thirty-five (16%) were born in another country from at least one Italian parent. The rest of the community included seven individuals of other nationalities married to Italians (3%): three Irish, one German, one French, one Canadian, and one American.

The regions and the provinces represented are three, Piemonte (Torino), Toscana (Lucca), and Veneto (Vicenza): ninety-six immigrants (44%) came from the province of Torino, 60 (27%) from the province of Lucca, and three from the province of Vicenza (1%). For 54 immigrants (25%) no information was available.

Table III shows the provenience of the individuals of the community in 1880. Although it is not of particular use now because the numbers are not that big, it will help to stress a specific pattern of Italian immigration to this county through the years. In fact the three regions represented in the table will remain in the first place as the sources of immigration to Houghton County. The table also helps to compare the trend of Italian immigration to Houghton County with that of general emigration from Italy during this period (see Figure I, Chapter I). In fact from 1876 until 1900, the so-called first phase of Italian emigration, most Italian emigrants left from the northern regions of Veneto, Friuli Venezia Giulia, and Piemonte.

Because some names of the 1880 census match names on the census of the following years, the documents yielded specific information about the villages (nowadays probably municipalities) in the province of Torino from which some of them came. The villages are Agliè, Locana Canavese, Pont Canavese, San Giorgio Canavese, San Martino Canavese, and Vialfre'. The pattern that starts to emerge and that will be evident in the following years is the fact that people from the province of Torino were actually coming from a limited area of the province itself called Canavese (see paragraph 2.4.2 of this chapter).

2.4 Italians in Houghton County in 1900: numbers and provenience

In 1900 the Italian community reaches 2,789. The increase was probably already evident in 1890, but there are not data available for that year. Of a total of 2,789 people, 1,891 (68%) were born in Italy, 855 (31%) had at least an Italian parent. The rest of them, thirty-two (1%) were from other nations and married an Italian.

With the increase in number also increased the number of provinces and regions of origin. There are in fact ten regions and twenty-one provinces represented.

There is no information about the provenience for 675 Italians (24.2%). As for the others, as Table IV shows, Torino and Lucca remain the first two provinces, with respectively 1,489 (53.3%) and 434 (15.6%) individuals. The third one is Belluno with forty-nine individuals (1.8%), followed by Bergamo with thirty-eight (1.4%) and Imperia with fifteen (0.5%). The rest of the provinces with less than fifteen immigrants sum up to seventy individuals (2.5%).

Marriages with persons from other nations increased. In fact there are nineteen individuals (0.7%) of other nationalities married to Italians (three Canadian, six German, three Irish, three American, one Belgian, one Norwegian, one Scottish, and one Swedish).

Again there was information about the villages of provenience of many immigrants of the province of Torino, and as in 1880, those villages are all in the area of Canavese. Of a total of 1,489 persons coming from the province of Torino, at least 966 came from thirty-eight different villages of the Canavese area (see APPENDIX VIII, Census of 1900). The remaining 523 were probably from those villages too, but the information available did not help to establish it. On the other hand, immigrants from the province of Lucca came from at least nineteen different villages/cities scattered all over the province, not just from a restricted area.²⁴

2.5 Italians in Houghton County in 1910: numbers and provenience

In 1910 the Italian community in Houghton County reached its peak with 4,384 people: 2,539 of them (58%) were actually born in Italy, 1,786 (41%) had at least one Italian parent, fourteen had at least an Italian grandparent, and twenty-seven were from other nationalities.

The places of origin increased in variety, accompanying the large increase in the size of the community. The regions represented are fifteen. Compared to 1910, Marche and Liguria do not appear anymore, the new ones are Valle d'Aosta, Lazio, Umbria, Molise, Calabria, Sicilia, Sardegna, and Basilicata.

People for whom there are no data about provenience are 843 (19.2%). People from other nationalities slightly increase in number, but decrease in percentage (0.5%), showing that Italians preferred to marry among themselves when possible, and that the marriage pool had grown sufficiently large to enable this preference.

Torino is again the first province for numbers of immigrants with 2,201 (50.2%), Lucca follows with 989 (22.6%). Belluno sixty-one (1.4%) is still the third, followed by Bergamo with forty-one (0.9%), Varese with thirty-nine (0.9%), and Milano with twenty-seven (0.6%). The remaining provinces with less than fifteen immigrants account for 3.7%.

The increase in the variety of provinces confirms the general trend of Italian emigration during this period (see Table II, Chapter I). In fact from 1901 until 1915, the period of the so-called 'great emigration', people start to leave in great numbers from many regions, not only from northern ones. It is important to notice, though, that this is also the time when emigration from Southern Italy tops that from the North. Yet we find just 22 people from southern regions (Calabria, Campania, Basilicata, and Sicilia. The number could increase to 42 if we include 20 individuals coming from central regions (Lazio, Abruzzo, Molise, Sardegna, and Umbria).²⁵ One of the reasons why Houghton County does not appear a favorite destination for southern Italians may be the weather, not really attractive for people used to warm temperature during most of the year. Another reason may be the fact that by that time prejudices about Southern Italians - and Southern Europeans in general²⁶ - were already widespread and companies such as Calumet and Hecla and Quincy may have specifically asked for Northern immigrants when recruiting.

Again the villages of provenience for many immigrants are in the province of Torino, and as in 1880 and 1900 those villages are all in the area of Canavese. On a total of 2,201 immigrants from the province of Torino, 1,703 surely came from at least forty-seven different villages of the area of Canavese. The remaining 498 were probably from the same area, but there is no direct evidence. Those from the province of Lucca came from at least 38 different villages scattered all over the province.

2.6 Italians in Houghton County in 1920: numbers and provenience

In 1920 the community counts 4,379 individuals: 2,045 (47%) were born in Italy, 2,234 (51%) had at least one Italian parent, fifty-three at least one Italian grandparent, and forty-seven were of different nationalities. The community appears stable compared to 1910 in which the members numbered 4,384.

What changes a little is the proportion of people born in Italy and first generation Americans. In 1910 2,539 out of 4,384 (58%) were born in Italy whereas in 1920 the number drops to 2,045 out of 4,379 (47%). There are two reasons: fewer Italians arrived in Houghton County, and those that were already here started a family and had children. This trend follows the general trend of Italian emigration in this decade; in fact fewer people were allowed to leave Italy because of the war and military service.

The regions represented are eighteen as in 1910, but Marche takes the place of Umbria. The provinces are forty. The number of people whose provenience is unknown is 878 (20%). Comparing 1910 to 1920 there are some changes in the percentages of immigrants coming from the two main provinces represented, Torino and Lucca. In 1920 people from the province of Torino decrease to 1,902 (43.4%). People from the province of Lucca increase to 1,261 (28.8%). Belluno is still the third province with forty-one immigrants (0.9%), followed as in 1910 by Bergamo with thirty-nine (0.9%). Only three other provinces have more than fifteen immigrants: Varese thirty (0.7%), Vicenza twenty-nine (0.7%), and Milano eighteen (0.4%). The rest of the provinces with less than fifteen immigrants account for 3.3% of the total. Marriages between Italians and people from other nations increased. There are in fact 39 (0.9%) people of different nationalities married to Italians.

The number of provinces represented in 1920 is similar to 1910, thirty-six and forty respectively, but in 1920 there is an increase in the southern ones. The overall number of people from southern regions (Campania, Basilicata, Calabria, and Sicilia) increases to thirty-six. Also the variety of the provinces of the central regions (Toscana, Marche, Lazio, Sardegna, Molise, Abruzzo, Emilia-Romagna) increases in 1920.

The villages of provenience for many immigrants of the province of Torino, as in 1880, 1900, and 1910, are all in the area of Canavese. Those from the province of Lucca came from villages or cities scattered all over the province.

2.7 Italians in Houghton County in 1930: numbers and provenience

In 1930 the community significantly drops to 2,839 people. There are 989 (34.8%) people actually born in Italy, 1,547 (54.5%) with at least one Italian parent, 190 (6.7%) with at least one Italian grandparent, and 113 (4%) individuals of different nationalities.

The variety of the provinces and the regions does not diminish though. The regions represented are fifteen (compared to 1920 Basilicata and Valle d'Aosta disappear and Liguria comes back), and the provinces are thirty-three.

Immigrants for whom there are no data available about provenience are 560 (19.7%). Marriages between Italians and non-Italians significantly increase. In fact there are 113 people of different nationalities (3.9%). Torino remains the first province with 1,240 immigrants (43.7%), followed as usual by Lucca with 663 (23.3%). This time Bergamo, with forty-one immigrants (1.4%), tops Belluno with thirty-seven (1.3%). Milano and Pistoia follow with nineteen (0.7%) and eighteen (0.7%) individuals respectively. The remaining provinces, each with less than fifteen immigrants, account for 5.2%.

Also in 1930 the villages of provenience of many immigrants of the province of Torino are all in the area of Canavese. Out of 1,240 immigrants coming from the province of Torino, 835 came from at least twenty-eight different villages of the Canavese. Those from the province of Lucca came from at least twenty-six villages/cities scattered all over the province.

2.8 Emigration from Toscana and Piemonte

The data clearly show a predominance of immigrants coming from two single provinces, Torino and Lucca, of two different regions, Piemonte and Toscana.

The maps below (Figure VI and VII) show respectively the position of the Italian regions and the approximate borders of the provinces in each region. Piemonte is one of the Northern regions of Italy, Toscana is considered Central or Northern-central Italy. The city and province of Torino is in the northern part of Piemonte (see map of the provinces, number seven). The city and province of Lucca is in the central part of Toscana, with some of the territories on the Tirrenian Sea (see map of the provinces, number fifty-one). The boundaries of the provinces have been changed through the years and provinces have been added. In both Lucca and Torino, some cities and small villages now belong to new provinces.²⁷ Therefore, in dealing with the data, we have to consider that. Nonetheless, municipalities and villages from whom most of the Italian emigrants to the Houghton County came still remain in the same region.

2.8.1 Lucca

Lucca is one of the ten provinces of Toscana. It stretches for about 1,772 square kilometers and it is comprised between the Ligurian and Tirrenian Seas, the chain of Appennino Tosco-emiliano, and the valley of Arno.

Nowadays the province itself, besides the city of Lucca, has a population of about 380,000 inhabitants divided among about thirty-five municipalities (see Appendix IV for a complete list).

²⁷ For example in 1923 some villages previously included in the province of Lucca passed to that of Pistoia.

The data about the provenience of Italian immigrants to Houghton County show that those who came from the province of Lucca were actually leaving from many villages scattered all over the province.

In 1900 Lucchesi mainly came from the municipalities of Collodi, Matraia, Pariana, and Villa Basilica. In 1910 they came from Collodi, Pescaglia, Matraia, Segromigno, and Santa Maria del Giudice. In 1920 the sources were Capannori, Colle di Compito, Collodi, Matraia, Pescaglia, Santa Maria del Giudice, and Segromigno. In 1930 people came from Collodi, Castelvechio, Matraia, Pariana, Segromigno, Santa Maria del Giudice, and Ruota.

The reasons that pushed Lucchesi out of Lucca are probably the same reasons - discussed in Chapter I - that forced millions of Italians to leave their villages and cities in the late nineteenth and early twentieth century. What remains unclear is what particular factors attracted them to Houghton County. Chain migration accounts for the largest number of them but does not explain why the very first Lucchesi settled here.

2.8.2 Area of Canavese in the province of Torino

Torino is the main city of the region of Piemonte, and with its 6,830 square km of surface is also its biggest province. Nowadays the province itself including the city of Torino counts more than 2,200,000 inhabitants. The Canavese is a northwest area of the province of Torino. It is delimited towards the northwest by the region of Valle d'Aosta, and towards east by the province of Vercelli. It is about 2,000 square kilometers in size, and includes around

2.9 Why they came to Houghton County

Most of the Italian immigrants in Houghton County came from just two provinces in Italy. The reasons for this are not immediately clear. A plausible explanation comes from some descendants of the immigrants themselves who still live in Houghton County or nearby. Doctor John B. Marta,²⁸ whose grandparents were among the first settlers from the province of Torino, came up with an interesting story. He said that he did not know all of the reasons why Torinesi came to Houghton County, but that his grandmother told him about the Italian counsel, Attilio Castigliano, contacting people in Italy with the information that he had jobs for about 300 people. He contacted people from the Canavese because he was born in that area and had immigrated to Houghton County earlier. These emigrants sailed from Italy to New York where they boarded a train and were taken to the Upper Peninsula. Many more Torinesi came to join their relatives.

There are no sources to support Marta's explanation and again the fact that the Italian counsel for the Upper Peninsula of Michigan - that was under the jurisdiction of the Regia Agenzia Consolare (Royal Consular Agency) of Duluth - was from the area of Canavese could as well be a consequence of the fact that there were many Torinesi in this area, even before he was elected counsel and recruited more of them.

Other descendants of the first settlers interviewed by Professor Magnaghi gave a similar explanation. In this case the connection between Houghton County and the Canavese is Bartolomeo Quello, one of the very first Italian immigrants to this area. He was from Locana Canavese and apparently brought many Italians from his area to work with him in the woods when he had a lumbering company, and then in the mine when he started to work there.²⁹

Another hypothesis that Italians arrived here just because "the train went as far as Keweenaw and they couldn't go any further", but it seems quite anecdotal.³⁰

Whatever the reasons for the pioneers to settle in Houghton County, one thing is clear. They were the starters of a chain immigration that followed intertwined regional and familial connections. Evidences of that are on many ships' manifests of the Ellis Island database. On some of them, in fact, besides giving the exact address of the final destination of the immigrant, it is also indicated if they were going to join relatives and/or friends. Many of them actually did.³¹

So far there are no specific reasons why many Italian immigrants from the province of Lucca settled in Houghton County either. One of the things that they have in common with the people from Canavese is the fact that these two areas have a significant mining tradition, at least by Italian standards.³² But the hypothesis that they both came here because of their mining skills is far from being proven. Ships' manifests offer some hints when describing the occupation of the immigrant, but it is not certain if immigrants are declaring the occupation they used to have, or the one they are hoping to have.

2.10 Comparisons

The following graphs show a comparison in the composition of the Italian community according to birthplace in the years examined and help to give an idea of the flux of Italian immigrants to Houghton County through the years.

In 1880 the Italian community is considerably small compared to the following years, and it is mainly composed by the so-called pioneers, mostly single men who arrived a few years earlier and had not started families yet. This explains the small percentage of individuals not born in Italy, who are mostly children. In 1900 this percentage almost doubles (31%) and the percentage of individuals born in Italy decreases proportionally (68%). Although data from 1890 are missing and a more reliable comparison is not possible, it is likely that the percentage increased because many of the immigrants married and started to have children. Individuals born in Italy are still the majority of the community suggesting that the flux of 'new' Italians to Houghton County is still relevant. In 1910 the community is considerably larger than in 1900, but the percentage of people born in Italy decreases to 58%. This is a first indication that fewer 'new' Italians are reaching the Upper Peninsula. In ³¹ www.ellisland.org.

1920 the percentage of individuals not born in Italy exceeds for the first time that of the people born in Italy suggesting that the flux of newcomers has remarkably decreased. In 1930 the community is considerably smaller than 1920, and the decreasing trend for individuals born in Italy continues. They now represent just 35% of the community.

It would have been interesting to determine the number of newcomers for each year examined, but it has not been possible because of a major problem in interpreting the data. The date of arrival in the US indicated in the censuses for each immigrant should refer to the very first time the immigrant reached the United States. In many cases, however, because many Italians were travelling back and forth between Italy and the United States, it refers to the latest time the immigrant returned to the United States.³³

In interpreting these data we have to consider that censuses ‘describe’ the population only every ten years. Nothing emerges of what is going on during the years in between. For example, considering just the data from the census one would say that the Italian community in Houghton County reached its peak in 1910. In fact, according to Attilio Castigliano it reached it in 1906-1907, and after these years the number of Italian decreased considerably.³⁴

The data from the employment cards of Calumet and Hecla also suggest big fluxes of Italian immigrants in between the years of the censuses. Many of these cards, in fact, include ³³ These data emerged when comparing the information of a single immigrant in the different years. Often the date of arrival indicated in 1900 did not correspond to that indicated in 1910, or to that in 1920. A subsequent look at the ships’ manifest confirmed that in many cases the immigrant indicated each time the date of his latest return to the US.

the date of the first arrival in the US of the immigrants, and they are often in between the years of the census. The cards also show that after 1910 most of the Italian newcomers were arriving from central and southern regions. The data from the censuses show this increase in the number of central-southern Italian immigrants in Houghton County after 1910, but not as much as the employment cards would suggest.

Chapter III - Occupations

3.0 Goals and Methods

The aim of the following chapter is to learn more about the occupations that Italians immigrants to Houghton County had and to verify if there is a relation between province of origin in Italy and occupation.

Information about the jobs that Italians had in 1870, 1880, 1900, 1910, 1920, and 1930 are from the censuses of the state of Michigan, Houghton County, of the same years. It has not been possible to find anything about 1890 because the census was lost. Several Polk's Directories produced in those years also indicate the occupations of some people, but they do not always match the information found in the censuses.

There are discrepancies in the terminology used by the agents working on collecting the information for the state censuses. In fact a variety of agents worked in a range of townships over several census years. Some of them are quite specific when describing occupations. In some cases they have been as meticulous as to indicate job, place of job, and level of job. In other cases they have been vague; for example they enumerate 'laborer', not indicating what kind of laborer, or where the laborer worked.³⁵

The various levels of detail describing occupations are retained in the tables that follow (Table IX, X, XI, XII, XIII, AND XIV). However, in order to compare the results of this analysis with previously assumed ideas about the fields in which Italians were mostly occupied, the occupations were grouped into eleven categories. The latter are large enough to be workable and condense data, but fine enough to capture change. The categories are Mining and related industries, Transportation, Boarding, Building, Farming, Food and drink selling, Professionals and Skilled Tradesmen, General office jobs, General merchandise sale, Unskilled, and Others.

The categories Mining and related, Farming, Construction, and Food and drink selling have been included because previous studies indicated them as the field in which most Italians were occupied.³⁶ Transportation, General merchandise sale, Professionals and Skilled Tradesmen, Boarding, and General office jobs have been included because the data from the censuses frequently showed Italians working in these sectors, at least in some years. Unskilled includes all those workers with no particular skills or for whom the censuses do not indicate any. Others include those whose occupation does not fit into the previous categories.

3.1 Occupations in 1870

In 1870 the census for Houghton County includes six Italian families for a total of twenty-one Italians. As Table IX shows, eight of them have an occupation.

Unless the three laborers, for whom the place of work is not indicated, are mine laborers, there are no Italians working in the mines yet.

No women are indicated as working outside the household. Because the relationships among the persons in the same households are not specified, no boarders are mentioned; therefore it is not possible to say if women are contributing directly to the monetary incomes of the family.

³⁶ Glazer, Nathan and Daniel Moynihan. Beyond the Melting Pot. Cambridge: M.I.T. Press. 1970. According to the work of Glazer and Moynihan Italians arrived in the countries of emigration “as stonecutters, mason, and unskilled laborers, but they remained to become merchants, professional people, and - where opportunity offered [...] - farmers”, p. 182.

It is not possible to establish a significant relation between occupation and proveniences because the number of Italians is still too small and their origins not completely clear for this year.

3.2 Occupations in 1880

In 1880 the Italian community increases to 220 individuals. According to the census 163 of them work outside the household.

As Table X shows many Italians are working in the mines (60), with a predominance of laborers, thirty-five, over miners, twenty-three.

The category with more people is Unskilled. However it includes sixty-two laborers for which the census does not specify anything, but likely they are mine laborers. In fact the category of Unskilled almost disappears as the enumeration of the work categories gets more specified by the census takers in the following years.

As in 1870 no women were enumerated as working outside the household. Twenty-four of them are indicated as housekeepers. In 1880 the relations among the members of the same household are indicated in the census, and sixteen households out of twenty-six include boarders. This suggests that the women are making an active contribution to the incomes of the family.

3.3 Occupations in 1900

In 1900 the Italian community includes 2,789 members. According to the census 1,680 of them have an occupation.

Most of the Italians are employed either in the mines or in fields strictly connected to them (65.3%). Trammers are the most numerous, 428, followed by miners, 290, laborers, 220, and timber men, seventy-six. These data are not surprising. Given the fact that Italy did not have a prominent mining tradition, Italians occupied low rank positions in the mining job hierarchy, at least during their first years of work.³⁷

Building, Professionals and Skilled Tradesmen, and Food and drink selling follow with relatively small numbers of workers. One important datum to notice in the category of Food and drink selling is the number of saloonkeepers. According to previous studies and the stories of many descendants of the first Italian immigrants, Italians were prominent in Houghton County in the liquor business. In this case, however, they do not appear to be that many: fourteen saloonkeepers and two liquor dealers. The same is true for masons, just thirty-seven, which according to many descendants interviewed by Professor Magnaghi should have been really numerous.³⁹

Another interesting datum concerns Farming. The number of workers in this field increases notably over the years, but considering the fact that Italian emigrants were almost totally countrymen, it is a little surprising to find just two farm laborers. One reason may be that during the first years Italian emigration was temporary and people wanted to earn as much as possible in a short time and then go back to Italy.⁴⁰ Investing in land, therefore, would have been too much of a long-term engagement. Secondly, buying land was not immediately affordable for the ones that had already in mind to stay in the foreign country. Thirdly, Italians could have worked as farm laborers for other landowners, but the salaries in agriculture were fairly low compared to other sectors such as mining.⁴¹ Another thing to be considered is the short farming season in Upper Michigan that did not allow a steady income all year long for people working in agriculture.

³⁹ Magnaghi, Russell. Interviews with Italian Descendants of the Upper Peninsula of Michigan, Northern Michigan University Archives.

As for women, the census indicates that forty-three of them are working outside the household in 1900. Twenty-three of them are servants, five boarding house keepers, five housekeepers, four salesladies, two dressmakers, two grocers, one milliner, and one washwoman. As for boarding house keepers, it is important to notice that many more Italian households include boarders although the census does not indicate the head nor the wife as boarding house keepers. These data, therefore, are indicative but not conclusive of women's roles.

There seems to be no relation between region of provenience of the Italians and jobs because they are more or less equally distributed in all the groups and jobs.

3.4 Occupations in 1910

In 1910 the great increase in the Italian community only partially corresponds to increases of the number of working people. In fact in 1900 the working population - without students who are not included in 1910 - was 48.5% of the community, whereas in 1910 they represented 42.1%. This is a result of the fact that there are many more families than single men compared to 1900 and many members of the families are children.

The bulk of the Italians are occupied in the mines (72.9%). The absolute number of miners is higher compared to 1900, 365 versus 290. However most of the Italians still have jobs that do not require a great deal of skill such as trammers, 300, laborers, 233, and timbermen, 170.

The number of Italians in the group of Food and drink selling considerably increases to 169 (9.1%). More specifically, saloonkeepers and proprietors of saloons are forty-two. Bakers and grocers do not increase proportionally.

The third group is Unskilled (4.9%) and it interestingly includes a majority of women working as servants and housekeepers. In fact the number of women working outside the household in 1910 rises to 129 and besides servants and housekeepers, there are many clerks, salesladies, laundresses, and boarding house keepers.

The fourth group of employed people in 1910 is Professionals and Skilled Tradesmen (3.1%), most of whom, twenty-five, are tailors and dressmakers.

As for the group of Building, the number of masons is still below expectations at just thirteen. However there are twenty-three Italian masons working in the mines.

The group of Boarding includes just women, sixteen boarding house keepers and two proprietors. However, as in the previous years, many more households included boarders than the number of boarding houses indicated by the census.

As in 1900, there seems to be no relation between region of provenience of the Italians and jobs because they are more or less equally distributed in the various sectors and jobs.

3.5 Occupations in 1920

In 1920 the Italian community remains stable in number, 4,379, and the percentage of employed (37.1%) decreases compared to 1910 (42.1%). Again the reason for that is in the increasing number of children together with the decreasing number of newcomers.

Mining jobs are still prevalent among Italians, although the percentage drops from 72.9% of 1910 to 66.7%. What increases significantly is the absolute number of miners. More interestingly, for the first time it tops the number of laborers, timbermen, and trammers together. These data show that Italians have moved up in the hierarchy of mining jobs. The reasons may be that many of them have been working in the mines for years by that time, and have acquired those skills allowing them to get better jobs. Secondly, after the strike of 1913 many people left the area for other destinations thus opening positions for others.

The second group is Food and drink selling. What emerges from the data is the fact that liquor dealers and saloon proprietors are remarkably fewer compared to 1910 -seven in 1920 and 42 in 1910 - and people in the food business, on the contrary, have increased. A reason may be found in the fact that this is the period of Prohibition⁴² and even though they continued to deal in alcohol, they did not declare it.

The number of Professionals and Skilled Tradesmen increases from fifty-seven to seventy-one (4.4%), and the group of Unskilled drops a little bit from 91 (4.9%) of 1910 to 66 (4.1%). Again the group of Farming does not include many individuals, but the number of farmers goes from eleven in 1910 to twenty-nine in 1920 showing that more people are investing in the land.

Women occupied outside the household in 1920 are, according to the census, 146. For the most part they are salesladies and/or clerks in stores. Many of them, twenty-eight, are also working as servants, maids or housekeepers as in 1920. As for office jobs, there are five bookkeepers, four telephone operators, three stenographers, one type composer and a secretary. They are involved also in businesses; in fact there are six storekeepers and two merchants. Professionals and Skilled Tradesmen are sixteen: seven dressmakers, four teachers, four nurses, three cooks, one seamstress, and one midwife. Boarding house keepers are four but, as in the previous years, these data are minimum figure because many more households include boarders. The remaining twenty-eight have unskilled jobs such as laborers, cleaners, and waiters.

The great diversity in the jobs - men's and women's - is both a consequence of the increasing number of the members of the community and the general diversification of jobs during these years. Also in 1920 there seems to be no relation between region of provenience of the Italians and jobs because they are more or less equally distributed in the various sectors and jobs.

3.6 Occupations in 1930

In 1930 the community is considerably smaller than in 1910 and 1920, 2,839 rather than 4,384 and 4,379. The percentage of active members is, however, a little higher than in 1920, 38.7% versus 37.1%.

The percentage of people working for the mines is considerably smaller than 1920, in fact it decreases from 66.7% to 49.6%. This is not just a result of Italians changing jobs, but of the general trend of the mining industry declining in these years. Miners are the most numerous, 181, followed by laborers, 131, timbermen and blacksmith, twenty-three and twenty-two respectively. Despite the decrease in the number of individuals, the great of variety of mining jobs remains.

The group of Food and drink selling is greater in percentage (15.3%) if compared to the previous years. The increase is mostly due to the increase in the number of proprietors and managers of food stores. The third group is Professionals and Skilled Tradesmen (7.2%). Compared to the previous years, the biggest group is that of teachers, twelve.

The women working in 1930 are 142. Most of them, forty-three are working as salesladies in stores, but many are also involved in office jobs. In fact there are thirteen bookkeepers, six stenographers, four telephone operators, two postmasters, and one type composer at a newspaper. As for other skilled jobs there are eleven teachers, two seamstress, three nurses, and two dressmakers. There are also two managers of boarding houses and four proprietors of stores, even though three of them are actually widows whose former husbands were the original owners of the stores. Three women are indicated as merchants and two as managers of a business activity actually owned by their husbands. As for the remaining, they have unskilled jobs such as servants, laborers in factories, waiters, and janitors.

3.7 Comparisons and conclusion

The following graphs show a comparison of the percentages of workers for each sector through the years. One thing to note in comparing the data shown in the graphs is the scale difference among occupations, in particular between Mining and Related and all the other groups. It is important to remember that in 1880 the members of the Italian community were just 220, few in comparison with the following years. However, the percentages for this year have been included to examine potential trends.

As Figure IX shows, Mining and related has an increasing trend for the first thirty years, from 1880 till 1910. It also corresponds to the increase in the numbers of Italians in Houghton County. In 1920, however, despite the fact that the community has more or less the same number of individuals as in 1910, the percentage of people working for the mines starts to decrease. In 1930 it is not the category with the absolute majority of employed persons anymore.

Figure IX. Percentages of workers in Mining and related in 1880, 1900, 1910, 1920, and 1930.

Transportation (Figure X), although with lower absolute numbers of workers than mining in every year, follows a completely different trend. In fact the number of workers increases steadily. Besides the increase in the number of workers for the railroad, what increases is the number of drivers both for taxi companies and for bus companies.⁴³

Figure X. Percentages of workers in Transportation in 1880, 1900, 1910, 1920, and 1930.

⁴³ According to Magnaghi “In the 1920s Caesar Lucchesi pioneered a bus service between South Range and Houghton, and maintained winter schedules by plowing the roads before the state of Michigan started this service”. Magnaghi, M. Russell. Italians in Michigan. East Lansing: Michigan State University Press, 2001, p. 22.

As Figure XI shows, Boarding reaches its peak in 1910, but as also previously stated, these data are far from being exact because many more households included boarders than the ones in which one member is indicated as boarding house keeper. Probably many individuals did not consider themselves as boarding house keepers when they had other occupations outside the house.

Besides the fact that the number of workers in Building (Figure XII) is far lower than what was expected, the trend of the percentages is the strangest.⁴⁴ The small number could be explained by the fact that many of them were working for the mines and are not therefore included in this group. It could also explain the fact that in 1930 the percentage increases; in fact given the decline in mining industry, it is possible that many workers had to find an alternative way to earn their living.

⁴⁴ This may be a consequence of the small sample.

Taking into consideration that 1880 may give a distorted picture because of the small number of workers, Farming (Figure XIII) has a steadily increasing trend through the years. As previously stated, the reason may be found in the fact that many Italians made up their minds and decided to stay in the United States for good. They did not need to earn as much money as possible in the shortest time possible to go back to Italy, and at the same time they were more willing to invest money in buying farms.

Figure XIII. Percentages of workers in Farming in 1880, 1900, 1910, 1920, and 1930.

Food and drink selling (Figure XIV) has a steady trend through the years, although it is important to note that the number of liquor dealers goes up and down in correspondence with particular moments in the country, such as Prohibition (see previous paragraphs).

Figure XIV. Percentages of workers in Food and drink selling in 1880, 1900, 1910, 1920, and 1930.

The percentages of Professionals and Skilled Tradesmen (Figure XV) and General office jobs (Figure XVI) seem to be evolving in accordance with the general developments in society. In fact its increase is a result of two factors: 1) the development of the sector of services, and therefore the appearance of new job categories and 2) the increase in the number of working women, many of whom are involved in office jobs.

Figure XV. Percentages of workers in Professionals and Skilled Tradesmen in 1880, 1900, 1910, 1920, and 1930

The same explanation could be true for the General sales sector (Figure XVII). In fact, besides the fact that Italians succeeded in investing their savings and start independent activities such as stores, the number of occupied in this sector increases because many women are working as saleslady in these stores. These data also reflect the growth of the retail sector overall.

Unskilled (Figure XVIII), always considering the fact that 1880 includes a great number of laborers whose place of job is not indicated but it is likely that they are mine laborers, has a steady trend. The great increase in the percentage in 1930 is due to the number of unskilled laborers in factories.

Figure XVIII. Percentages of workers in Unskilled in 1880, 1900, 1910, 1920, and 1930

The final category, Other (Figure XIX), is also consistent through the years - although in 1900 it appears to be extremely high, but it is because the census included students in the group of “employed”.

Figure XIX. Percentages of workers in Other in 1880, 1900, 1910, 1920, and 1930.

One last note about occupations is on the relation between provenience and jobs. It appears that they are not related. In fact, considering the two main groups of Italians, Torinesi and Lucchesi, and the sector of occupation with more workers, mining, the percentages indicate that they are equally distributed (in absolute numbers Torinesi are always the larger number of the two groups).

In 1900 37% of the Torinesi and 41% of Lucchesi are working in the mines. In 1910 the percentage is 26% for the Torinesi and 36% for the Lucchesi. In 1920 23% of the Torinesi are working in the mines are, and 24% of the Lucchesi. In 1930 20% of the Torinesi and 18% of the Lucchesi were working in the mines (Figure XX).

Chapter IV - Settlements

4.0 Goals and Methods

The aim of the following chapter is to learn more about where in Houghton County Italians preferred to settle and to find out whether there was a relation between province of origin and spatial clustering in locations and villages.

The data used to determine the pattern of settlement of Italians in Houghton County are from the censuses of the state of Michigan, Houghton County, of 1870, 1880, 1900, 1910, 1920, and 1930.

In these censuses, Houghton County is divided into townships and villages. Their boundaries are not the exactly the same in each year however. There exist no known sources defining how long current boundaries have been configured, but it seems that they are/were relatively fluid over larger spans of time. The more significant changes probably occurred during the setting off and/or creation of new townships. Over time, townships have ceded property back and forth, affecting their boundaries. In addition, unincorporated township property was regularly annexed into incorporated villages and cities. However, because changes came slowly and in small degrees for the most part, they should not be significant in affecting comparisons among general patterns of Italian settlement through the years.⁴⁵

Organized or incorporated villages (e.g. Hancock, Calumet, and Laurium) are technically not part of townships because the villages are managed by their own governments. Spatially, however, they can be identified as within townships. Therefore, even when they were incorporated, they have been grouped with the township to allow spatial continuity and help comparisons. South Range Village has been included in Adams Township, Calumet, Laurium, and Red Jacket Village in Calumet Township, Hancock in Hancock Township, Houghton in Portage Township, Lake Linden in Schoolcraft Township, and Hubbell Village in Torch Lake Township.

Tables XV-XIX show the distribution, in percentages and absolute numbers, of the Italians over the townships and the villages. Some mining locations are also indicated when there were Italians living there.

After determining numbers and percentages of Italians for each township and village, the patterns of settlement of the two main groups of Italian immigrants, Torinesi and Lucchesi, have been compared to see if they showed different preferences as to townships and villages of residence.⁴⁶ Italians originating in other provinces were excluded from examination because of low absolute numbers.

4.1 Settlements in 1870

In 1870 Houghton County is divided into eleven townships: Adams, Baraga, Calumet, Franklin, Hancock, Huron, L'Anse, Portage, Quincy, Schoolcraft, Webster. The Italian community counts just twenty-one individuals. They are concentrated in Franklin Township.⁴⁷ Only one Italian is living in Baraga Township.

4.2 Settlements in 1880

In 1880 the division of Houghton County changes a little bit. The townships are seven: Adams, Calumet, Franklin, Hancock, Portage, Quincy, and Schoolcraft. Baraga, Huron, L'Anse, and Webster Township are no longer part of Houghton County.

Italians have increased in number from twenty-one to 220. As Table XIV shows, most of them are living within the territory of Calumet Township: 131 in Red Jacket Village, and twenty-eight in Precinct 2. In Franklin Township there are fifty-four Italians, and seven in Quincy.

⁴⁶ Many previous studies about Italian immigrants have shown that they were really province or even village-minded in the sense that they tended to congregate with other Italians from the same province or even the same village. See, for example, Park, Robert and Herbert Miller, Old World Traits Transplanted, New York: 1921, pp.146-151.

As for distribution of Torinesi and Lucchesi, the former are clearly clustered in Calumet Township, and more exactly in Red Jacket Village (70%). The latter are almost equally distributed between Calumet (52%) and Franklin Township (48%).

4.3 Settlements in 1900

By 1900 Houghton County is divided into thirteen townships. Seven are the same as 1880 - Adams, Calumet, Franklin, Hancock, Portage, Quincy, and Schoolcraft. The new ones are Chassell, Duncan, Elm River, Laird, Osceola, and Torch Lake. The villages in which Italians are living include Laurium, Red Jacket, Hancock, Houghton, and Lake Linden.

As Table XVI shows, most of the 2,789 Italians residing in Houghton County in 1900 were actually living in Calumet Township - 1,950 (69.9%). Franklin and Adams Township follow with 461 (16.5%) and 214 (7.7%) respectively. In Osceola Township there were 96 Italians (3.44%). Hancock and Portage Township counted respectively 33 (1.2%) and 17 Italians (0.6%). Only one Italian was living in Torch Lake (0.03%), as well as in Schoolcraft Township (0.03%).

Torinesi and Lucchesi represented respectively 53.4% and 15.6% of the Italian community in 1900. A careful analysis of the data shows interesting differences between their clustering.⁴⁸ Torinesi clearly prevailed in numbers and in percentage in Calumet Township and in the two villages within its boundaries, Laurium (17.8%) and Red Jacket (8.7%).

⁴⁸ The comparisons are made among the percentages, not among absolute numbers.

Lucchesi, on the other hand, settled in big percentages in Franklin Township (38.9%), Calumet Township (33.5%), and Adams Township (17.5%). A smaller group was in Osceola Township (9.6%). They are particularly concentrated in Red Jacket village (13%).

4.4 Settlements in 1910

In 1910 Houghton County includes fourteen townships: Adams, Calumet, Chassell, Duncan, Elm River, Franklin, Hancock, Laird, Osceola, Portage, Quincy, Schoolcraft, Stanton - which was not in the census of 1900 - and Torch Lake. The villages in which Italians are living are seven. Five are the same as in 1900 - Laurium, Red Jacket, Hancock, Houghton, and Lake Linden - and the new ones are Hubbell and South Range.

The numbers of Italians in Houghton County significantly increases from 2,789 to 4,384, and the township in which they were more numerous is still Calumet with 2,405 Italians (54.9%). This time Adams Township is the second with 730 (16.7%), followed by Franklin with 668 (15.2%).

Torinesi are 2,201 (50.2% of the total Italian community) and Lucchesi 989 (22.5%). As for distribution of Torinesi and Lucchesi, the former are mostly living in Calumet Township (72.3%), and particularly in Raymbaultown (12.7%) and Calumet and Hecla Location (11.4%). The highest concentration is in Laurium village (19.4%). Compared to 1900, their percentage almost doubles in Adams Township (13.6%). In fact they are numerous in South Range Village (5.2%).

Lucchesi, as in 1900, are spread over more townships, in particular Franklin (30%), Adams (26.2%), and Calumet (23.2%). In Calumet Township they are clustered in Raymbaultown (5.2%) and Calumet and Hecla Location (3.4%). As far as the villages within the boundaries of Calumet Township, Lucchesi are numerous in Red Jacket (6.6%). The highest concentration of Lucchesi, however, is in Trimountain (18.8%). In fact in Trimountain Location the census indicates an "Italian Settlement". There are 118 Italians living there and eighty-nine of them are from the province of Lucca. The rest of them are from other provinces of Toscana, and there are no Torinesi. This may show that people from the same region are actually clustering together.⁴⁹ In fact it seems that Sunny Italy (this is the name of the settlement in the recollection of people interviewed by Professor Magnaghi and also according to the censuses of 1920 and 1930) was the place where Toscani having some kind of interest in farming preferred to settle.⁵⁰ On the other hand, farmers from Piemonte clustered in an area of Franklin Township called Farm Section Location in the census of 1920.⁵¹

4.5 Settlement in 1920

In 1920 the various boundaries are the same as in 1910.

The number of Italians in Houghton County is almost the same as in 1910, 4,379. Most of them are still living in Calumet Township (47.6%), although the percentage decreases compared to 1910. The Italian population significantly increases in Adams Township (23.6%), and decreases a little in Franklin (12.7%).

Torinesi are 1,902 (43.4% of the Italian community), a drop compared to 1910. They are still concentrated in Calumet Township (70.7%), Adams (11.8%), and Franklin (7%). The highest concentration of Torinesi is again in Laurium village (18.8%), however they are also numerous in Raymbaultown (10%), Wolverine (7.2%), South Range (5.4%), and Hancock City (3.9%).

Lucchesi significantly increase to 1,261 (28.8% of the total Italian community). Adams becomes the first township as far as number of Lucchesi (42.9%), but they still are numerous in Franklin (20%), and Calumet (17.2%). In Franklin Township they are clustered in Pewabic Location (8.1%) and Franklin Location (7.2%). As far as villages, Lucchesi are numerous in Hancock (7.2%), South Range (5.6%), Red Jacket (5%), and Laurium (3.9%). Trimountain remains the location with the highest concentration of Lucchesi (24.9%).

Seventy-nine Italians are living in Sunny Italy, and sixty-four of them are from the province of Lucca. Lucchesi, as during the previous years, are more distributed over the territory than Piemontesi.

4.6 Settlements in 1930

In 1930 the various boundaries are the same as in 1910 and 1920. The Italian community shrinks to 2,839. Calumet is still the township in which most of them are living (54.7%), followed by Adams (18.9%), Hancock (9.7%), and Franklin (8.6%).

As Table XIX shows most of the Torinesi are in Calumet Township (72.7%), and smaller percentages live in Adams (11.9%), and Franklin (6.1%). They are particularly concentrated in Laurium village (19.7%), South Range village (5%), and Franklin Location (4.8%).

Adams is still ‘the township of Lucchesi’. In fact 36.6% of them are living there, however, the highest concentration of Lucchesi is no longer in Trimountain but in Hancock City (21%). Franklin Location (12%), Trimountain (9.2%), Painesdale (8.9%), Baltic Location (8.6%), and South Range village (7.6%) follow.

4.7 Conclusions

The following graphs - Figure XXI and XXII - show the change in the numbers of Italians in the townships of Houghton County through the years. Figure XXI includes the three townships - Calumet, Adams, and Franklin - in which the Italian community had an average population above 500. As the graph shows, in each year examined Italians were more numerous in Calumet Township - including the villages within its boundaries. Franklin Township was second in 1880 and 1900, but from 1910 on Adams topped it.

The decrease in the number of Italians in Calumet and Franklin Township starting in 1910 reflects the decrease in the overall population of Houghton County. In Adams Township the decrease started in 1920.

Figure XXII show the trend in the Italian population in the remaining townships - all with an average Italian population below 300 people - of Houghton County. Franklin Township is also included to show the concentration of Italians in Franklin, Hancock, and Quincy townships together. Although in these townships the number of Italians is considerably smaller than in the previous three, the graph still shows the same trend: increase in the Italian population from 1880 until 1910 and decrease from that year on. The only anomaly is in Hancock Township. In fact there the Italian population increases also from 1910 until 1920, and it is steady in 1930. However Italians are actually clustering in Hancock city. Apparently, with the population shrinking, Italians tended to concentrate in the city.

As for distribution of Torinesi and Lucchesi across the territory, the data clearly show that they had different preferences. As for townships, most of the Piemontesi throughout the years settled in Calumet Township, whereas Lucchesi spread over different townships with peaks in Adams and Franklin Townships in alternate years. As for villages, Laurium appears to be the village of Piemontesi. Lucchesi do not have a village in which their number is high and steady through the years, but a location, Trimountain.

Figure XXII. Number of Italians in the remaining townships in 1880, 1900, 1910, 1920, and 1930.

In conclusion, as far as settlements, Italians appear to follow in Glazer and Moynihan's words "village-mindedness" because "they tended to congregate with others from the same province or even village".⁵² This is not surprising for several reasons. First of all there was a language barrier. Standard Italian is a fairly recent achievement.⁵³ Immigrants leaving Italy at the end of 19th and beginning of 20th century had not been exposed to it. Coming from different parts of Italy, they spoke such different dialects that often they were not able to understand each other.⁵⁴ Secondly, they did not necessarily think of other ⁵² Glazer, Nathan and Daniel Moynihan. Beyond the Melting Pot. Cambridge: M.I.T. Press. 1970, p. 186.

⁵³ The influence of television is probably what allowed the 'birth' of a common language unifying a nation that, from the point of view of dialects, was composed of uncountable smaller 'nations'.

⁵⁴ In some recollections of Italian descendants interviewed by Professor Magnaghi, Italians coming from different regions got along very well, but in any kind of gathering "Piemontesi would be by themselves and regions' Italians as being from their same country. In fact Italy was united in 1861, but its boundaries were not definitive until after World War I.

Chapter V - Organizations

5.0 Social, cultural, religious, and business organizations

Despite the regional and province-based Italian settlements, Italians in Houghton County were capable of creating group-wide organizations. They certainly remained linked to their provinces and villages of origins; in fact the very first organizations had the village or the province of origin as common denominators for the members. However, they were able to unite in larger organizations when necessary. The following chapter illustrates the information that it has been possible to gather about some of the organizations that Italians established in Houghton County. Information are from Polk's Directories, personal papers of Professor Russell Magnaghi kept at Central Upper Peninsula and Northern Michigan University Archives, oral interviews taken by Professor Magnaghi, and archival material kept at Michigan Technological University and Copper County Archives.

5.1 Social organizations: mutual beneficial and mutual help societies

Mutual beneficial and mutual help societies were very common among Italians of Houghton County. They were not part of the new way of living; in fact mutual beneficial societies (società di mutua beneficenza) and mutual help societies (società di mutuo soccorso) were common in Italy long before the national unification. They most probably derived their model from the 'collegia opificium' of the Roman period, a way of proletarian organization to face problems connected with illnesses, injuries, poverty, wars, and old age.⁵⁵ These represented a successful way of organization before the appearance of medieval corporations. Actual mutual beneficial and/or help societies first appeared in Italy toward the end of the eighteenth century as voluntary associations among workers to improve moral and material conditions. During the nineteenth century they acquired more specific purposes such as promoting education and welfare.

On the eve of unification, which happened in 1861, Piemonte counted about 115 of these societies, and another ninety-one were spread over Northern Italy, in Lombardia, ⁵⁵ www.mtuosoccorso.it, 01-30-2004.

Liguria, Veneto, and Emilia-Romagna. These societies had in common a strong professional cohesion, urban locations, and political neutrality, but these changed after 1861.

In 1862, according to a statistic of the Ministero dell'agricoltura, dell'industria e del commercio, there were 443 societies concentrated in Piemonte, Liguria, Lombardia, Toscana, Emilia-Romagna, and Umbria. Principles of solidarity and democracy inspired the foundation of some of them; some others were closer to the moderate political positions of the Italian nobility. This division was further stressed after the constitution of the First International that stressed their different political perspectives. In fact the First International was founded in London in 1864 as the International Workingmen's Association. Karl Marx was a key figure in inspiring its creation and was later chosen as its leader. Its goal was to unite all workers for the purpose of achieving political power along the lines set down by Marx and Friedrich Engels in the Communist Manifesto of 1848.

Some other societies were inspired by Catholic principles. In 1854 the first Catholic society was organized in Genova (Società operaia cattolica italiana) and its bylaws worked as a model for the others.⁵⁶ The main difference between religious and secular societies was the fact that the first ones lacked any interest in social and economic progress of the members. The members of the societies, both religious and secular, were usually required to pay a monthly fee in exchange for a daily allowance in case of illness or work accidents. In the worst case, death, the family of the member received a larger amount of money to face funeral expenses.

Every Italian community in Houghton County had at least a mutual beneficial and/or help society. Often there were many more depending on how big the community was and on other things such as the places of origin of the members, the gender of the members, their civil status, and on the principal purposes of the society. Between the 1870s and the 1930s, more than 40 societies were organized in Houghton County. Each society usually had a group of officials: a president, one or more vice presidents, a secretary and a treasurer. In the case of bigger societies, there were also a vice-secretary and a vice-treasurer, a group of advisers, an executive committee, and an auditor. If one of the aims of the society was to promote naturalization, there was also a secretary of naturalization. There was a committee for health to refer to in case of illness and a committee for death to deal with cases of death.⁵⁷

Thanks to these organizations workers were able to cooperate in confronting the problems of the emerging industrial society before social insurance was available. However the social strength of the ‘village’ or the ‘province’ hardly reached a larger scale. In fact most of the societies were organized by and included only individuals from a specific part of Italy, sometimes a province, others even a village.

5.1.1 Societies in Calumet Township

The very first Italian society in Houghton County was established in Red Jacket in 1875, the Italian Mutual Beneficial Society (Società Italiana di Mutua Beneficenza). The original members numbered eighty-four. The society was established with the aim of assisting the members and their countrymen in every possible way. As the membership grew and the society had enough money, it was decided to build a hall. The first attempt failed in November 1889 when, after construction had begun and it was nearly completed, a windstorm blew it down. In December of the same year the lodge was incorporated according to the laws of Michigan. In February 1890 the members purchased a lot on Seventh Street in Calumet and in the following years Joseph Wilmus, a contractor, erected the Italian Hall, a three story wooden structure. It lasted until 1908 when, after a celebration, accidental fire broke out and destroyed everything.⁵⁸ Fortunately it was insured with the Italian Fire Insurance Company⁵⁹ for $14,000, but the loss was approximately $ 27,000. The members of the Italian Mutual Beneficial Society waited for the Italians belonging to other lodges to join them in the effort to build another hall. Receiving no positive answers, they decided to go on their own and by October of 1908 the ‘third’ Italian Hall was completed on the same site as the previous one (see Figure XXIII). The dedication took place on October ⁵⁹ See paragraph 5.4.

⁵⁷ Many societies, besides announcing the date of meetings, also advertised about these committees on the Italian newspapers. For example, Ettore Perrone Society of Calumet, advertised in Il Minatore Italiano of October 13, 1908 that its illness committee was composed of four members: Marta Giuseppe in Calumet, Massoglia Martino in Hecla, G. Gianoglio in Black Hills, and Domenico Motto in Red Jacket. In case of illness the members had to notify the representative in their district within three days of the beginning of their illness or otherwise would lose any right to a claim.

⁵⁸ The Hall was rented to St. Joseph’s Austrian Society to celebrate its 25th anniversary.

10, 1908. It became the meeting place for many of the Italian societies and the focal point for the Italian community itself. However, what made the Italian Hall known nationwide was the so-called Italian Hall Disaster of December 1913. During the 1913 copper miners' strike, members of the Western Federation of Miners decided to organize a Christmas party for the children of the union members on the second floor ballroom of the Italian Hall. Almost 700 children and parents were attending the party on Christmas Eve when somebody allegedly shouted that there was a fire. Seventy-three people died (only three of them were actually Italian) in the attempt to escape the Hall, although there was no fire. Several investigations never found out who caused the panic hollering fire. Nobody was prosecuted.

Figure XXIV. The Italian Hall as it appeared on the front page of the special edition of Il Minatore Italiano (October 13, 1908) on the day of the dedication. The article describes the dedication ceremony and introduces many of the persons who attended.

The Hall continued to be used by the community until the 1960s, but by the 1970s it was no longer used for social functions and was in poor condition. In 1984 the Italian Hall was torn down and the Italian Hall Park was established on the same site.

The Italian Mutual Beneficial Society lasted until 1922 when, because of the poor economic conditions and the decrease in the Italian community, they decided to merge with other societies to form the New Italian Beneficial Society of Christopher Columbus (Nuova Società di Beneficenza Italiana Cristoforo Colombo).

In 1895 two other societies were established in Calumet: the Giuseppe Garibaldi Society (Società Giuseppe Garibaldi), and the Christopher Columbus Guard N. 4 (Guardia Cristoforo Colombo No. 4).

In 1897 were organized the Ladies Aid Society of St. Mary's Italian Church (Società Donne Della Chiesa Italiana di Santa Maria) and the Italian Lodge of the Modern Maccabees (Loggia Italiana dei Moderni Maccabei).

In 1907 the Tuscan Society of Giuseppe Giusti (Società Toscana Giuseppe Giusti) was established in Calumet, and in 1908 the Italian Republican Club (Club Repubblicano Italiano).

In 1909 three other societies were organized: the Society of Italian Riflemen (Società Bersaglieri Italiani), the Carlo Botta Society of San Giorgio Canavese (Società Carlo Botta di San Giorgio Canavese), and the Italian Beneficial Society of the Duke of Abruzzi (Società Italiana di Beneficenza Duca degli Abruzzi).

In 1910 three new societies were organized in Calumet: the Giuseppe Garibaldi Bachelor Society (Società Giuseppe Garibaldi Celibi), the Club Alpino among the Residents of Pont Canavese and Locana Canavese (Club Alpino tra i residenti di Pont Canavese e Locana Canavese), and the Supreme Legion of the Knights of Romulus (Legione Suprema dei Cavalieri di Romolo).

The Subordinate Lodge of the Knights of Romulus No. 1 (Loggia Subordinata dei Cavalieri di Romolo No. 1) was organized in 1912. The Sons of Italy Society of Mutual Aid (Società di Mutuo Soccorso Figli d'Italia), and the Daughters or Ladies of the Eternal City (Figlie o Signore Della Città Eterna) were organized in 1915 and 1917 respectively.

In South Hecla the Citizens' League (Lega Cittadina) was established in 1919. In Laurium were established at least six societies. The very first was organized in 1896, the Giuseppe Garibaldi Legion Lodge No. 61 (Legione Giuseppe Garibaldi Loggia No. 61).

Ettore Perrone Society among the Residents of San Martino Canavese (Società Ettore Perrone di San Martino Canavese) was founded in 1908, and in 1910 the Citizens' League for Mutual Help No. 1 (Lega Cittadina di Mutuo Soccorso No. 1) was formed.

Two other organizations were in Laurium whose date of establishment is not known: Club Alpino and Italian Social Club (Club Sociale Italiano).

5.1.2 Societies in Franklin Township

In Franklin there were five known societies: the Riflemen Society (Società Bersaglieri); the Alessandro Lamarmora Society (Società Alessandro Lamarmora); Young Italy Tuscan Society (Società Toscana Giovane Italia); the Reunited Society of the Sons of Columbus (Società Riunite Figli di Colombo); and the New Industrial Society (Società la Nuova Industria). Their dates of foundation are not known.

Four societies were created in Hancock: the New Industrial Benevolent Society (Nuova Società Industriale di Beneficenza) established in 1903, the Citizens' League No. 2 (Lega Cittadina No. 2) established in 1909 and active until 1937, the Subordinate Lodge of the Knights of Romulus No. 2 (Loggia Subordinata dei Cavalieri di Romolo No. 2) organized in 1912, and the Consorelle Society (Società delle Consorelle).

5.1.3 Societies in Adams Township

In South Range numerous societies were organized throughout the years although the dates of foundation are not known for all of them.

The Subordinate Lodge of the Knights of Romulus No. 3 (Loggia Subordinata dei Cavalieri di Romolo No. 3) was established in 1912.

The Daughters of Italy (Figlie d'Italia) was organized in South Range in 1919 by a group of women. Certain criteria were required to be a member of the society, and they remain the same to this day because the society is still active in 2004. A member should be at least sixteen, Catholic, and of course of Italian descent. Starting from 1934 they accepted also members bearing an Italian name even though they are not of Italian descent. The aim of the society was to "unite as much as possible the women living on this side of the Lake, to create the friendship that promotes the normal, material, and national development in this adoptive land far from our Country".⁶⁰

Other societies were the Beneficial Society of Italian Hunters (Società di Beneficenza Cacciatori Italiani); the Italian/Tuscan Brotherhood (Fratellanza Italiana/Toscana); the Dante Alighieri Beneficial Society (Società di Beneficenza Dante Alighieri); the Society Pietro Micca of Piedmont (Società Pietro Micca Piemonte); and the ⁶⁰ Bylaws of the Daughters of Italy, article I.

Citizens' League No. 3 (Lega Cittadina No. 3). As the names of the societies show, many of them had a strong regional identity.

When the membership of some societies grew smaller, they decided to unite and created the United Tuscan Beneficial Societies (Società Toscane Unite di Beneficenza) and The Sons of Italy Beneficial Society (Società di Beneficenza Figli d'Italia), which was organized in 1918, and combined Beneficial Society of Italian Hunters, Tuscan Brotherhood, United Tuscan Beneficial Society, Dante Alighieri Beneficial Society, and Society Pietro Micca of Piedmont.

There were at least three societies in Trimountain: the Society of Royal Carabineers (Società Carabinieri Reali), the Italian-Tuscan Society (Società Italo-Toscana), and the Society Tuscan Youth (Società Gioventù Toscana). The last two reflect the fact that Lucchesi were particularly numerous in the area.

One society is known in Wolverine, the Citizens' League (Lega Cittadina), established in 1919.

Although it has not been possible to find bylaws and written documents for each and every society⁶¹, many of them, through their names, give us indirect information about their main purposes and, sometimes, about the place of origins of the members. Some of them are named after famous Italian patriots that led the way to the unification of Italy: Pietro Micca, Alessandro Lamarmora, Giuseppe Garibaldi, Carlo Botta, and Ettore Perrone.

Pietro Micca (1677 Sogliano - 1706 Torino) was a Piedmontese soldier. During the French siege of Torino (during the Spanish Secessionist war) he was in charge of a mined tunnel. Because some enemies were to enter the city through this tunnel, he blew it up and died to save the city. Alessandro Lamarmora (1799 Torino - ?) was a Piedmontese general whose ideas about quick troops with light weapons inspired the organization of the Bersaglieri. Giuseppe Garibaldi (1807 Nice - 1882 Caprera) was an Italian general and nationalist who led 1,000 volunteers in the capture of Sicily and Naples in 1860. His conquest led to the formation of the kingdom of Italy in 1861. Carlo Botta (1766 San Giorgio Canavese - 1837 Paris) was a politician and an historian who followed the ideals of the French Revolution. Ettore Perrone (1789 Torino - 1849 Novara) was a general who played an important role in the riots of 1821 in Piemonte.

Some other societies are named after Italian poets such as Giuseppe Giusti and Dante Alighieri. Giuseppe Giusti (1809 Monsumanno - 1850 Firenze) was a satiric poet very famous during his life. Dante Alighieri (1265 Firenze - 1321 Ravenna) is one of the best Italian poets, and he is considered the 'father' of the Italian language.

Other societies are named after Italian organizations of various kinds such as Giovane Italia, Cacciatori delle Alpi, Bersaglieri, and Carabinieri. The Giovane Italia was a political association organized by Giuseppe Mazzini⁶² in 1831. Its main ideals were progress and equality. Its members were strong fighters for national unity. The Cacciatori delle Alpi were volunteer followers of Giuseppe Garibaldi who fought during the second and third Italian Independence War. The Carabinieri is a Corps of the military formed in 1814 that became the first Corps of the Italian army after the unification.

⁶¹ Bylaws have been found for just three societies: the Daughters of Italy; the Colonial Union among the Italia-American societies of the Counties of Houghton, Keweenaw and Ontonagon; the Italo-American Federation of the societies of the Upper Peninsula of Michigan. See Appendix I and II.

⁶² Giuseppe Mazzini (1805-1872) was an Italian patriot and revolutionist that had a decisive role in the Italian struggle for unity.

Finally some societies are named after important men in Italian and American history such as Romulus, Christopher Columbus, and the Duke of Abruzzi. Romulus was, according to the legend, the son of Mars and eponymous founder of Rome who, with his twin brother, Remus, was reared and suckled by a wolf. Christopher Columbus (1451 Genova - 1506 Valladolid) was an Italian explorer in the service of Spain who determined that the earth was round and attempted to reach Asia by sailing west from Europe, thereby discovering America in 1492. The Duke of Abruzzi was in fact Luigi Amedeo di Savoia (1873 Madrid - 1933 Duke of Abruzzi village, Somalia). He was an explorer and a general of the navy during World War I.

Despite their different origins, aims, and membership, when the Italian population in Houghton County, and also in other parts of the Upper Peninsula, became smaller, some societies decided to unite. The Colonial Union among the Italian-American Societies of the

on November 9, 1907 (see Figure XXVI). Its aim was to create an association among Italian societies “to help the common interest of the associates and at the same time to promote and support the moral, material, and political development of the Italian nation” in the United States.⁶³ The union was composed of the following societies: Ettore Perrone Society and Giuseppe Garibaldi Legion, Lodge No. 61 of Laurium; Italian Mutual Beneficial Society, Christopher Columbus Society No. 4, Club Alpino, Club Carlo Botta, Tuscan Society Giuseppe Giusti, and Giuseppe Garibaldi Bachelor Society of Calumet; Beneficial Society of Italian Hunters of South Range (see bylaws in Appendix I).

The Italo-American Federation of the Societies of the Upper Peninsula of Michigan (Federazione Italo-Americana fra le società italiane dell’Upper Peninsula del Michigan) was founded in Iron Mountain on October 23, 1909 among “all the Italian societies of the Upper Peninsula whose principal aim is mutual help”⁶⁴. Its aims were to promote a feeling of brotherhood among all persons of Italian birth and descent, to teach Italian culture and literature, to foster respect for Italian history and institutions, and to induce, assist and encourage all persons of Italian birth to become citizens of the US and actively assume the duties of citizenship (see bylaws in Appendix II). The headquarters of the federation was in Calumet. The associated lodges from Calumet were Tuscan Society Giuseppe Giusti, Italian Mutual Beneficial Society, Christopher Columbus Society No. 4, Club Alpino, Club Carlo Botta, and Giuseppe Garibaldi Bachelor Society. From Laurium the societies were Citizens’ League N. 1, Ettore Perrone Society, Giuseppe Garibaldi Society, and Christopher Columbus Society. One associated lodge was from Hancock, Citizens’ League N. 2, two from Franklin, Alessandro Lamarmora Society and Young Italy Tuscan Society, and one from South Range, Pietro Micca Society. Other associated lodges were from different counties of the Upper Peninsula. Little is known about the number of the members.⁶⁵

⁶³ See APPENDIX I, Bylaws of the Colonial Union.

⁶⁴ See APPENDIX II, Bylaws of the Federation.

⁶⁵ In 1922, according to the Federation of the society, Giuseppe Giusti Society had about sixty members; Italian Mutual Beneficial Society about one hundred; Christopher Columbus Society N. 4 about fifty; Club Alpino about eighty; Club Carlo Botta about seventy; Giuseppe Garibaldi Bachelor Society about twenty; Citizens’ League N.1 about sixty; Christopher Columbus Society of Laurium about twenty; Ettore Perrone Society about seventy-five; Giuseppe Garibaldi Society of Laurium had about twenty-seven; Citizens’ League N. 2 about ninety; Pietro Micca Society about forty.

5.2 Cultural organizations

Italians also established several periodicals and newspapers in the Italian language. The Pro Nobis (For Us) was the official publication of the Supreme Legion of the Knights of Romulus. It was a monthly review published in Calumet.

The only available issue known to exist is dated November 1912 (see Figure XXX). It includes information about the Supreme Legion of Calumet and its Subordinate Legions in Hancock, South Range, and Negaunee. The first article is dedicated to introducing the Lodge of the Knights of Romulus. It starts with the history of Romulus and explains that the lodge was named after him because he represents the symbol of the birth of Rome and of the Roman civilization. The article also explains why the members of the lodge felt the need for this publication: promoting Italian culture and showing that, contrary to previous assumptions, Italians are not ‘ignorant’. The actual articles relate Arabic legends about the origin of Libya, electricity and its effects on the development of children, the centenary of the steamship, and medical suggestions. A section is dedicated to quotes and lives of famous Italians. Most part of the publication is filled with advertisements of various businesses (see Figure XXX).

Il Minatore Italiano (The Italian Miner) was established in 1896 and continued publishing into the 1930s, although it is not known when it stopped. It was a daily newspaper until 1919. By 1928 it became a tri-weekly. The paper was published in the Tinetti building on Osceola Street in Laurium. The editor was Augusto Marinelli. He was actually Austrian by birth (although all the censuses indicate that he was born in Italy) but of Italian culture. The company editing Il Minatore Italiano also owned and operated a printing shop, the Miner Publishing Company, which also worked for other Italian organizations. In 1912 the company edited the Guida degli Italiani Della Copper Country, a valuable guide in Italian which listed most of the Italians living in the region. The guide included a list of all the Italians above the age of fifteen that agreed to be included. In addition, it includes summaries of the lives of some prominent Italians that emerged above the others because of their businesses or involvement in the community (see Figure XXXIII). During the strike of 1913-1914, the newspaper took a strong pro-company stand.⁶⁶ The first page of the newspaper was usually dedicated to the news from the world, with particular focus on those stories regarding Italy. The second page usually had section dedicated to the local news called Cronaca del Copper Country, Chronicle of Copper Country (see Figure XXXII). It also included announcements from the various Italian benevolent societies advertising the places and dates of the meetings. On the third page often appeared either a string of comics or a novel. The fourth page was usually dedicated to in depth accounts of political subjects introduced on the first pages. Advertisements were included in each page regarding Italian products, businesses in Houghton County, companies of transportation, banks, etc.

La Sentinella (The Sentinel) was established probably around 1896 in Red Jacket. Until 1903 it was printed in a shop operated by John Lisa at 407 Seventh Street, Calumet. The editor was Giuseppe Adamo. In 1901 Lisa was both editor and publisher, and the newspaper had a circulation of about 5,000 copies. In 1906 the editor was Teofilo Petriella, a socialist with college training. Around 1907 Petriella left the area to become a strike leader on the Mesabi and Vermillion Ranges. In 1910 the newspaper was published and owned by Luigi Nida and it was still located at 407 Seventh Street. The one surviving issue of the newspaper is dated February 6, 1906 and it's filled with socialist ideas. In its later years it was a socialist newspaper.⁶⁷

L'Indipendente (The Independent) was established in 1917 in Hancock. The editor was A. Prati and the corresponding agent was Ermino Pupilli. It is not known how long the publication lasted. The only available issue is from November 6, 1917. The front page includes news about the Italian fronts of WWI and a section of brief news from all over the world (a criminal case in Minneapolis, the stop to the issuing of passports in Russia, the price of potatoes in Michigan, etc.). The second page includes a section of local news and more news from the world. Page three is almost completely dedicated to articles about war injured and the progresses of medicine in this field. Page four includes part of a novel and news about markets and stocks. All the pages show advertisements of local businesses: D. Giannerini local representative of prestigious fashion houses; Bianchi & co. grocery shop at 424 Fifth Street in Calumet; Barsotti & Co. Ice Cream; Caserio & Massoglia importers of Italian products; Richetta Bros. livery stable; etc. Many banks also advertised in the newspaper: First National Bank and State Savings Bank of Laurium, Calumet State Bank, Superior National Bank of Hancock. Many companies of transportation also published their advertisements on the newspaper, sometimes indicating the prices of their tickets to and from Italy: Transatlantica Italiana (tickets between $ 75 and 80); Sicula Americana; Lloyd Sabauda ($ 75); Navigazione Generale Italiana.

During the 1913-1914 strike the Miners’ Bulletin, the Western Federation of Miners’ official publication, had one fourth of its copy written in Italian. Ben Goggini (or Gaggini, according to the census), one of the most prolific Italian writers for this newspaper, challenged the pro-company stand of Il Minatore Italiano. In all the issues from October 23, 1913 until March 14, 1914 (N. 6 until N. 66), there is a section called Bollettino dei Minatori (see Figure XXXIV) in which the writers criticize the articles of Il Minatore Italiano. More specifically they accuse the editor of that newspaper, Augusto Marinelli, of being a puppet in the hands of the mining companies. The section often includes a list of the names of Italian scabs giving details about their origins, lives, and actions.⁶⁸ Satiric poems, both in Italian and in dialect, about the strike and the workers not adhering to it appear in several issues (see Appendix III).⁶⁹

⁶⁸ For example on the issue number 63 of 03-25-1914 they write about Carlo Giacioletto of Wolverine. According to the article Giacioletto, after several months of receiving financial support from the union, has become a scab. Cesare Zana is called 'dog of the mine company', as well as Cesare Lucchesi. This kind of article appears in every issue of the Miners' Bulletin and each one includes names of scabs.

⁶⁹ For example in the issue number 54 of 01-28-1914 there is a poem dedicated to Guido Locatelli, scab and author of an article against the strike published in Il Minatore Italiano. The poem makes fun of his way of writing and compares him to a donkey. Another poem published in the issue number 24 of 10-07-1913 gives a satiric description of the places of birth of the scabs.

Almost nothing is known about La Democrazia Italiana. It was published in Calumet and lasted a little more than a month, but it is not known when and by whom it was edited.

Italians also formed a dramatic group in Calumet which was particularly active around 1910, the Italian Hall Dramatic Group. A similar group existed in South Range, which offered puppet shows.

5.3 Religious organizations

Italian immigrants were mostly, if not totally, Catholics. In Houghton County they founded a church, St. Mary's Church in Calumet in 1897. It served the community until 1966 when it was consolidated with other catholic churches because of the decline in the population. According to some Italian descendants interviewed by Professor Magnaghi, in Calumet there was always an Italian priest.⁷⁰ The censuses also indicate at least one Italian priest each year.

As far as Adams Township, some Italian descendants remember going to church at St. Mary Star of the Sea in Atlantic for many years before the Holy Family Church was built in South Range. These were not Italian churches however, nor did they have Italian priests.⁷¹

5.4 Business enterprises

The Italian Mutual Fire Insurance Company was organized in Laurium in 1898. Michael Richetta was the founder. At first its aim was to help Italians, but through the years the company got bigger and became an insurance company for everybody. In 2000 it was still in business, although with a different name, Great Lakes Mutual Fire Insurance Company (see Figure XXXVI).

In 1910 a group of Italian entrepreneurs from the Upper Peninsula of Michigan formed the Italian Businessmen Association. They intended to secure the cooperation among Italian businessmen throughout the Copper Country by promoting moral and business interests. A similar association was organized in Laurium in the same period, the Italian Commercial Club.

Chapter VI - Conclusions

The main goal of this research was to rediscover the communities of the Italians who lived and worked in Houghton County in order to raise the degree of attention given to the social and cultural heritage that they left. The data and the information gathered have generated a clearer idea of who the Italians that settled in Houghton County were. There is a great deal of information that time and availability has prevented from being used in this work. The results, however, represent a valuable continuum between previous studies and possible future in-depth research projects.

The censuses have helped in determining the number of people that formed the Italian community (born in Italy, of Italian descent, or married to Italians) in the years examined. The first census year in which their number is significant is 1870; there were twenty-one. From that year until 1910 the data show an increase in the community; in 1880 there were 220, in 1900 they reached 2,789, and in 1910 there were 4,384. In 1920 the number of Italians remained stable at 4,379. The year 1930 shows a significant decrease to 2,839. Unfortunately there are no available sources to show the number of Italians living in Houghton County in the years in between the census years. In fact, it is likely that their number reached its peak around 1906-1907.

Data showed that most of immigrants came from just two Italian provinces, Torino and Lucca. Although in later years the variety of provinces represented increased, from 1870 until 1930 the Italian community in this county was, and still is in the recollection of the Italian descendants, formed by Torinesi/Piemontesi and Lucchesi/Toscani. Other regions such as Lombardia and Veneto were also represented, but the number of Lombardi and Veneti descendants never reached more than 150. Because it has not been possible to establish regions of origin for many immigrants, further research could look at ships' manifests from ports of arrival other than New York. Determining the port of departure, on the other hand, is not easily done because Italians left from many different Italian and European ports.

Interesting information has been gathered about the jobs that Italians had while living in Houghton County. Previous studies and personal conversations would lead one to believe that Italians in this region were mostly involved in mining jobs, and that many of them were liquor dealers, masons, and farmers. Data showed that most Italian workers were in fact employed in the mines. However, the number of Italians that were employed as liquor dealers, farmers, and masons was found to be less significant than previously thought. Dividing the occupations into categories allowed comparisons to be made about the number of Italians working in different fields, and the establishment of employment trends. Further research could compare these trends with those of other ethnic groups of the area.

Census data also showed in what townships and villages Italians preferred to settle. Torinesi descendents showed a preference for Calumet Township and Laurium Village. Adams Township and Trimountain Location were preferred by descendents of Lucchesi. It would be interesting to perform archeological investigations in some of these places to complement data from written documents. A lot more could be discovered about everyday life. Sunny Italy, the Italian settlement in Trimountain, would be the first place to investigate because it was a purely Italian settlement.

Much information has been found about various Italian organizations, such as the benevolent societies. Having access to minute books of some of them would have been of greater help, but unfortunately not much is known about the existence of original documents. If some of them still exist in private possession, hopefully one day they will be donated to public repositories and be accessible by the general public.

Italian newspapers published in Houghton County have also helped in getting to know something about Italian interests, problems, and activities. For some of these newspapers, however, only few issues have been located. It would have been interesting, for example, to have issues of Il Minatore Italiano that covered the period of the 1913-1914 strike. It also would have helped this research to find more issues of other newspapers such as La Sentinella and any issue of La Democrazia Italiana. Again it is likely that private citizens still have some issues and making them available to researchers would provide a great deal of information.

All in all this work reveals several tendencies about Italians that lived in Houghton County between the end of the 19th and the first decades of the 20th century. Many little discoveries, however, represent precious details about the past for some people, researchers and/or Italian descendents, for example. Hopefully this thesis will be a starting point for other scholars to investigate the topic to a greater extent. For example future works could take a closer look at the relation between employment trends of Italians in the three bigger mining companies, Calumet & Hecla, Quincy, and Copper Range, and Italian settlements in Calumet, Quincy, and Adams townships. In fact it would be interesting to know if different companies encouraged or discouraged Italian workers, and possibly changed their preferences at different decades. The databases of the Italian community in 1870, 1880, 1900, 1910, 1920, and 1930 - included as appendixes - also represent a valuable source of information for whoever will be interested in studying family demographics, upward economic mobility, and genealogy. Another interesting work would be comparing Italians to other ethnic groups to see how they differed as for jobs, occupations, settlements, and organization.

of the Italian-American Federation among the Societies of the Upper Peninsula

Parte Prima

ART. 1.

Nel giorno 23 di Ottobre 1909, presenti i Delegati di 28 Società Italiane aventi sede nelle diverse città del Northern Mich., in Iron Mountain veniva organizzata un'associazione la quale venne in quel giorno stesso denominata, "Federazione Italo-Americana" per l'Upper Peninsula. A detta Federazione potranno far parte tutte le Società Italiane aventi sede nell'Upper Peninsula, quando esse abbiano per principale scopo il Mutuo Soccorso. La sede della Federazione sarà stabile in Calumet, Mich.

First Part

Art. 1

On the day October 23 1909, present the delegates of 28 Italian societies of Northern Michigan, in Iron Mountain was organized an association called "Italian-American Federation" of the Upper Peninsula. The societies allowed to join the federation need to be located in the Upper Peninsula and to have as main goal Mutual Help. The headquarter of the Federation is in Calumet, Michigan

ART. 2.

Scopo principale della federazione sarà quello di conservare fra i membri delle diverse società Italiane quel continuo contatto e quella armonia che sono necessari tra figli di una stessa patria; di promuovere la Cittadinanza Americana il più che sia possibile; promuovere l'insegnamento della lingua Italiana sia nelle scuole pubbliche, sia coadiuvando l'istituzione di scuole private; procurare che gli elettori Italiani procedano uniti e compatti nei casi di elezioni generali, per modo che la forza del voto degli Italiani venga apprezzata, e di istituire nel seno della Federazione una Cassa Mutuo Soccorso, per aiutare i membri in caso di infortunio o di morte, e finalmente di sostenersi gli uni con gli altri con atti fraterni, umanitari civili e politici.

ART. 3.

L'amministrazione della Federazione sarà composta da un Presidente, un primo Vice Presidente, ed uno per ogni località, un Segretario ed un vice Segretario di corrispondenza, da un Segretario ed un vice Segretario di finanza, da un Tesoriere e da un vice Tesoriere, da un Maresciallo ed Assistente Maresciale, e da un Consigliere per ogni località e di un numero illimitato di Presidenti Onorari, i quali verranno scelti tra quei membri che si siano maggiormente distinti nella Federazione o tra i connazionali i quali per meriti speciali abbiano diritto alla riconoscenza comune.

Tutti questi ufficiali avranno il diritto di far uso del titolo "Generale". Oltre agli ufficiali suddetti l'amministrazione sarà ancora composta da un deputato per ogni società, eletto dalle medesime annualmente al tempo delle elezioni ordinarie, essi saranno considerati come consiglieri, ed obbligati d'intervenire alle riunioni che chiamerà il Vice Presidente locale per i rapporti, per il benessere ed il buon andamento della Federazione. Finalmente da un comitato per le operazioni di naturalizzazione per ogni località. Gli ufficiali superiori ed i deputati, i consiglieri ed i comitati di naturalizzazione comporranno la Gran Loggia.

Principal aim of the federation is to keep in touch the societies and preserve the harmony among sons of the same country; to promote American citizenship as much as possible; to enhance the teaching of the Italian language in public schools [...]; to unity the Italian voters in case of general elections; to organize a Cash of Mutual Help to help the members in case of illness or death.

Art. 3

The administration of the Federation is composed by a President, one first Vice President, one Vice President for each locations, a Secretary and Vice Secretary of Correspondence, a Secretary and a Vice Secretary of Finance, a Treasurer, a Marshall and an Assistant Marshall, an Advisor for each location and an unlimited number of Honorary Presidents [...]. Moreover, a Deputy for each society will be part of the administration. There will be a Committee of Naturalization. The Officials, the Deputies and the Committee will form the Great Lodge.

- 6 - ART. 4. Tutti gli ufficiali dovranno prestare la loro opera gratuitamente, ad eccezione dei segretari, ai quali sara' pagato uno stipendio in base, al lavoro che la carica medesima portera' progresso della federazione. Questa verra' fissata ogni anno alla convenzione. ART. 5 Qualunque societa' Italiana avente sede nell'Upper Peninsula, potra' far parte della Federazione Italo Americana, qualora il suo principale scopo sia il Mutuo Soccorso. Per essere ammessa a far parte della federazione la societa' dovra' presentare copia della deliberazione presa dai membri in seduta ordinaria o straordinaria, la quale verra' presentata nella prima riunione del consiglio d'amministrazione. ART. 6. L'ammissione della Societa' verra' considerata col primo del mese in corso, coll'obbligo di presentare l'elenco di tutti i soci in	- 7 - regola, coll'ammontare di (10) dieci soldi per socio a pro percapita. ART. 7. Tutte le Societa' federate pagheranno un percapita di 10 soldi, per anno per ogni membro effettivo la quale tassa andra' a credito del conto amministrazione. Da questo conto verranno detratte le spese di cancelleria, onorario ai segretarii, posta ecc. per quanto riguarda la Federazione. Nel caso in cui maggiori fondi fossero necessari, l'amministrazione generale e' autorizzata ha chiamare un altro percapita l'ammontare del quale non potra' essere superiore ai dieci soldi. ART. 8. La Federazione Italo Americana avra' ogni anno una convenzione alla quale ogni societa' federata dovra' mandare due delegati. Nel caso una societa' avesse meno di 100 membri, e volesse mandare un solo delegato, avra' diritto a farlo. Questo delegato avra' pero' diritto ad un solo voto. Questa convenzione dovra' aver luogo due giorni

THE MINERS' BULLETIN

Miners' Bulletin N. 54

01-28-1914

To Guido Locatelli

I read on the dirty paper
Called the miner
The absurd prose
That compose a donkey speech.

The prose of an infamous scab
Who stinks
And it's good just for 'becchetelli'
The donkey Locatelli.

He calls imbecile and stupid
Ignorant and bastard
Let's let him alone
Let him continue to graze.

To feed that brain
In disorder and confused
Full of dirt
Full of garbage.

He calls himself a mason
Of building
He doesn't even know how to make lime
Nor how to use a trowel.

Hac, Huc, hi, Gigina goes
Poor little animal
We feel pity for him
Let's do something.

If you get close to him
You will feel soon and clearly
That he stinks so much
That takes your breath away.

Happy Hours

Two saloon keepers

Little George: My God...poor time poor time!
 When a day passes by without you earning five cents business ends!

Big John: I'm not satisfied either. It was better before when I had money from renting and I had to think about nothing. Now, to be honest, I have only problems.

Little George: We made a big mistake fooling around with Marinelli....and now we can say goodbye to our businesses...

Big John: You are right. Listening to him I lost money from own my pocket.

Little George: Well! Well! We have something anyhow. We had a lot of publicity without paying any cent.

Big John: You are right, we cannot complain. The Bulletin treated us nicely. I'll use Marinelli's paper as toilet paper.

Little George: Me too. It's good just for that.

Miners' Bulletin N. 57

02-18-1914

It is really beautiful

Ah! How beautiful you are
I look and look again at you
And then I sigh.

Yes you are really beautiful!
The world envies your beauty
And you always keep up!

You are always beautiful
Tall enough
Fascinating for everybody
Lovely creature.

You are tall and thin
Surrounded by the sea
You were baptized by providence.

You have a nice family
Strong and smart
Whose inventions are Always so useful.

Law and poetry,
Music and sculpture
Your family master painting.

In this moment
I look at your sons and cry
And I say to myself
They have become mud.

Dirtier than dung
And you can see their dirty acting
But you cant' do anything
They were born scabs.

But some others
Are united and fierce
They stand up for their rights
Till the end.

They will win the strike
And will get what they are asking for
And everybody know that
Their requests are fair.
